PLOT TO KILL KING; 50 SLAIN

Dom Manuel II., boy King of Portugal, whose life is threatened by plotters against throne. Dom Manuel's father, Don Carlos, and the Crown Prince were recently assassinated.

Troops With Machine Guns Guard Palace of Portuguese Monarch—Heavy Fighting in Lisbon—More Than a Thousand Arrests Made.

PARIS, April 8.—With thousands of troops bivouacked in the streets and machine guns guarding every approach to the royal palace as the result of the discovery of a plot to assassinate King Manuel, Lisbon is to-day under martial law.

More than fifty rioters were slain and 300 wounded in the terrific street fighting yesterday.

Hundreds of political arrests have been made, and the jails of the city are crowded. Arrangements have been made to have the prominent military offenders immured in the strong military fortresses in the provinces, where there will be little hope of rescue.

REIGN OF TERROR IN CAPITAL.

A reign of terror exists in the capital. Many influential men have been thrown into prison without semblance of a trial.

Regiments of troops, whose loyalty is unquestioned, have been rushed into the city from distant parts of the country.

Patrols are maintained at every street corner in the center of the city, while a picked body of men with machine guns have encamped in the squares surrounding the Necessitades Palace where the boy King is hiding.

PLOT TO KILL ALL CABINET.

The assassination plot, which the police claim was laid by Republicans, is declared to have aimed not only at the death of the King, but all his cabinet ministers, and the establishment of a republic.

The sky over Lisbon's suburbs was lit with fire last night and the air was filled with the roar of musketry and the shrieks of the dead and dying.

THOUSANDS FLEE IN PANIC.

Bands of men ran wildly through the streets, brandishing weapons, while the sharp crack of rifles was heard in various sections. Thousands of the most peaceable citizens fled to their homes just as they did on the night after the assassination of King Carlos and the crown prince.

The rioting followed the bloodshed Sunday night over the dispute between the Republicans and Monarchists on the counting of votes. The Republicans, who had been fearing fraud at the various Lisbon polling places, made a determined stand for their rights at St. Dominique's Church, in the centre of the city, a stronghold of Republicanism.

WOMEN URGE MOB ON.

In Alcantara a serious clash occurred. The mob fought for nearly an hour against the police and soldiers, many of whom were wounded.

Women with their aprons filled with stones, supplied missiles to the men and urged them on. Flagstones were torn from the pavement and furiously hurled against the troops. Republican leaders harangued the people to revolt. Barricades were formed. Cafes were invaded, the people breaking up their furniture for extempore fortifications.

Forces of light cavalry were hurried to the points where trouble was most serious and the mobs were finally scattered after several hours' fighting.

BLAME GOVERNMENT FRAUDS.

The Republican leaders maintain that the Government's frauds at the polls are responsible not only for the monarchist majority in the Cortes, but for the present disorders. They believe King Manuel is preparing to invest Premier Ferreira with the same dictatorial powers enjoyed by Franco during the latter part of Carlos' reign.

Martial law was not proclaimed until last night when a Cabinet meeting decided to place the responsibility for restoring and maintaining order upon the military governor.

In the provinces, where the monarchists have been in an overwhelming majority from the first and the election seems to have been fairly conducted, no rioting is reported.

On the face of the returns it appears that the Republicans elected only five or six deputies to the Cortes out of a total of 155. The others represent various factions upon whom the government can depend for support.

ACTRESS WINS DIVORCE; TAKES MAIDEN NAME

Gertrude Binley of the Castle Square Tells of William L. Thorne's Abuse.

On grounds of cruel and abusive treatment, Gertrude Binley Thorne, the actress, now playing at the Castle Square Theatre in Boston, was granted a divorce to-day from William Long Thorne of Providence in the Dedham Court. The Thornes were married February 12, 1905. As Miss Binley of Brookline, Mrs. Thorne was well known on the stage. She is now allowed to resume her maiden name, which was also her stage name.

Thorne made no defence to-day when the case came before Judge Lawton in the Norfolk Superior Court and did not appear either in person or by counsel. In her complaint Miss Binley charged her husband with habitual intoxication, nonsupport and cruel and abusive treatment in Boston, Philadelphia and Providence.

Mrs. Thorne said she first met Thorne when both were members of Nance O'Neil's company.

She declared that soon after marriage he began to abuse her and choked her on several occasions, and that he was habitually under the influence of liquor. She gave him most of the money she earned and he spent it for drink.

She stated that she last heard of Thorne when she filed her suit in the Norfolk Superior Court in August. He was then in Providence.

Arthur E. Sawyer of Brookline, who traveled for four seasons in companies with Mrs. Thorne and her husband, testified that Thorne was a hard drinker and spent much of his money for liquor.

Mrs. Sally Binley, mother of Mrs. Thorne, testified that on several occasions she saw Thorne choke his wife and otherwise abuse her. She stated that Thorne had never supported her daughter and that for the last two years Mrs. Thorne had made her home, when not on the road, with Mrs. Binley, at No. 145 Aspinwall avenue, Brookline.

WOMAN GIVES POLICE CLEW TO NEW SUSPECT

"I DIDN'T DO IT," STRANGELY NERVOUS MAN MUMBLED TO SEAMSTRESS.

To Chief Inspector Hurley of Cambridge was given a clew in the Annie Mullins murder to-day which was regarded as so important that the chief and two of his men immediately started out to locate the suspect. So well known is the man that Captain Hurley refused even to permit a description of him to be given out.

The clew was brought in by a young woman, who requested that her name be not made known in connection with the case. In substance this is the story she told the police official:

"Last Wednesday afternoon I was sewing at the house on Concord avenue, Cambridge, where I have been employed as a seamstress, when I saw a man walkin up and down in front of the house. He seemed to be nervous and excited. As I watched him I saw him look up at the house. He must have noticed that I was sewing for he suddenly turned toward the door.

Wanted Buttons Sent On.

"I answered his ring, and he asked me if I would sew some buttons on his coat. I told him I would, and he came in.

"He sat down near me after removing his coat. As I sewed the buttons on I heard him muttering to himself.

"'I didn't do it; I didn't do it,' he kept repeating to himself. Then I wondered what the matter could be with him and finally asked him what he meant.

"'I didn't do it, anyway,' he said.

"Recalling the Annie Mullins case I asked him: 'Did you know Annie Mullins?'

"'Yes, I did,' he answered, 'but I didn't do it.'

"When I had finished sewing on the buttons I gave the coat back to him, and he went out at once.

"I don't know that there is anything in this at all, but I thought it my duty to let the police know what had happened."

His Identity Recognized.

From the description, Captain Hurley at once recognized the man, and went in search of him.

The police of Boston and Arlington are to-day investigating the movements of Benedict Shanahan, a fisherman who knew Annie Mullins and, according to James Graham, a cousin of the dead girl, claimed he was engaged to her. Shanahan, it is claimed, appeared at the home of Mrs. Mary Graham on West Sixth street, where the body of Annie Mullins rested a week ago last Monday, and asked to be admitted to the house. He was refused that privilege and, young Graham says, remarked:

"I was going to marry Annie Mullins and for that reason I should be let in. I would have been married to her now only her aunt stopped me."

Mrs. Ann Smallcomb of No. 272 D street told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that Shanahan was well known to her, but that he was more fond of Katie Neville, who has since been married. "I have heard Bert praise her very often," said Mrs. Smallcomb. "He went out with Katie quite a lot and walked home with her often. When she got married I don't think he went with anybody. I never heard him mention the name of Annie Mullins."

Shanahan, the police have found, is aboard the schooner Catherine and Ella, which sailed for the Grand Banks last Friday and will not return for a week at least. He was released from the hospital on the Monday before Annie Mullins was murdered.

GUILD GAINS IN STRENGTH

Governor Guild continues to improve in health and strength, according to the physicians who are attending him.

Through Private Secretary Frank L. Dean, Dr. F. B. Winslow issued the following bulletin at 9:45 to-day, after he had been at the Governor's house for a short time:

"There is a steady moderate improvement in Governor Guild's condition."

CHICAGO UNEMPLOYED BESIEGE CITY HALL

STARVING, DEMAND WORK AND DEFY THE POLICE TO SHOOT.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Three hundred men facing starvation went to the City Hall this morning and demanded work. It was refused, and they are marshalled on the sidewalk, refusing to move away.

The police sergeant in charge told R. Romadi, leader of the men, that they would be locked up unless they moved on. Romandi refused.

"You can beat us, or shoot us, or kill us. We starve here," he said.

Romadi told the police that 2,000 more unemployed were now forming all over town and would march on the city hall at once. The police have surrounded the men, who continued defiant.

GIVE OUT FOOD TO SAVE THOUSANDS FROM STARVATION

CHICAGO, April 8.—Bread and meat for the hungry wives and children of hundreds of idle workmen of Hammond and Indiana Harbor, Ind., is to-day being distributed by R. F. Schaaf, township trustee.

Starving men, who gave up their own small portions for their families, are at last being taken care of, and it is expected to have the distribution of the food systematically provided for before the day is over.

Immediate action was decided on late yesterday, when more than 300 men and boys stormed the office of Trustee Schaaf, demanding food. Schaaf called a guard to prevent a panic at the office, and with the aid of a committee of sixty citizens issued provisions from the commissary.

Statistics compiled by the trustee shows that nearly one-third of the entire township is out of employment. The Standard Steel car works shut down last Wednesday at Hammond, leaving 4,000 idle; 3,000 were thrown out by the Simplex Railway Appliance Company, closing down a few weeks ago; the Inland Steel Company released 2,000 a week ago; the Republic Iron and Steel Company at East Chicago let out 800 men. The situation is considered as the most desperate ever faced in northern Indiana.

BRANDEIS RAPS METHOD OF MERGER PROMOTERS

MEETS BYRNES IN DEBATE AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING.

Nearly 400 members of the Chamber of Commerce listened to-day to Vice-President J. E. Byrnes of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and Louis D. Brandeis of Boston debate on the proposed merger of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven roads.

Mr. Byrnes made the point that New England must have a railroad of its own and that if the New Haven doesn't get the Boston & Maine somebody else will get it. He said that Boston should be the centre of a New England railroad system. He answered categorically the questions propounded by the president of the Chamber of Commerce, C. J. Rothwell.

In answering the first question regarding the amount of money necessary for the changes proposed by the merger, he said no estimate of the cost could be made. He did insist that a tunnel between the North and South stations and the electrification of certain sections of all roads would surely follow. He stated later that the New Haven road had never considered the proposition of selling the Boston & Maine stock to the State.

Favors "Boston" Sign.

Regarding the word "Boston" appearing in the title of the New Haven road Mr. Byrnes said he personally favored it and would recommend that change to the directors.

Mr. Brandeis immediately propounded to Mr. Byrnes the question: "Why are the figures given as the cost of the Boston & Maine stock taken by the New Haven, $12,855,084, while the par value is $10,994,894."

Mr. Byrnes replied that the figures were the difference between par value and actual value.

Takes Up Financial Status.

Referring to the financial condition of the New Haven, Mr. Brandeis claimed that the report of the Commission of Commerce and Labor as to the road's standing should be accepted as the only indication. He declared that the New Haven had carefully avoided going before the Legislature for permission to acquire the stock of the Boston & Maine. On the contrary, he said, they had gone about it covertly, through the Commission of Comemrce and Industry. A secret and somewhat partisan investigation was made and a report was made by a majority in favor of permitting the merger. Ex-Governor Douglas and Edward R. Crozier dissented.

The method was unfair, he said, because the public had no notice that the question of merger was being considered by the commission.

The New Haven, he said, has incurred extraordinarily heavy obligations. These can be met by increase of rates, increase of business or by great economy.

Mr. Brandies declared that the average freight rate on the New Haven is 34 per cent. higher than on the Boston & Maine.

The Boston & Maine railroad, Mr. Brandeis said, was in the present financial condition because of unwise consolidations, particularly because of the consolidation with the Fitchburg road.

MORAN MERELY ATTORNEY IN LAWSON CASE

State street and legal circles have been much mystified over the mentioning of the name of District Attorney John B. Moran in the specifications in the legal action which John F. Donohue of Lynn is bringing against Thomas W. Lawson.

To-day to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter Mr. Donohue explained his mention of the District Attorney's name. He said:

"The reference to Mr. Moran is a very minor matter in my bill of particulars against Mr. Lawson." And then he explained that he had secured the services of John B. Moran to attend a certain meeting of stockholders in New York for the purpose of breaking up and rendering futile said meeting."

"There was to have been a meeting about seven years ago in New York," Mr. Donohue continued, "at which I was to be asked certain questions which Mr. Lawson was not only anxious should not be asked, but was even more anxious should not be answered.

"Mr. Moran was to be there simply to object to my answering these questions. His being mentioned in this suit is in no way a reflection on Mr. Moran. I want that understood. He was at that meeting just as my attorney to protect me from the questions which Mr. Lawson didn't wan put or answered."

Mr. Donohue then explained that in his declaration he did not mean Miss Olga Nethersole, for whom, it was understood by some, Mr. Lawson had acted as "angel," but Miss Nethersole's brother, who is a theatrical manager.

SHANAHAN IS SOUGHT BY POLICE

"I Was Going to Marry Annie," Girl's Cousin States Fisherman Said.

IS WANTED AS WITNESS

In their search to locate the man who is known to have called on Annie Mullins, while she was employed in the home of Professor von Jagemann, No. 113 Walker street, Cambridge, the Arlington police to-day made every effort to get in touch with Benedict Shanahan, a fisherman from St. John's, N. F., who was in Boston during the week on the Friday of which the girl was murdered.

Benedict Shanahan, it has been found, is a member of the crew of the fishing schooner Catherine and Ellen which sailed for the Banks last Friday and will probably not touch this port again for a week at least.

That Shanahan knew Annie Mullins, and that on the night when the dead girl's friends were sitting up with the body at the home of her aunt on Sixth street, South Boston, he tried to get in to see the body, and declared he had been engaged to her, was told the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day by James Graham, a cousin of Annie's.

Engaged to Annie.

James Graham stood at the door on that night to keep out people who had no business in the house. Shanahan arrived with a Mrs. Smallcomb and two other women. The women were admitted. Graham refused to let Shanahan in. The man persisted in his effort and Graham said:

"Who are you, anyway? What do you want to come in here for?"

To this, Graham says, Shanahan replied:

"I was going to marry Annie Mullins, and for that reason I should be let in. I would have been married to her now only her aunt stopped me."

Not believing the statement, Graham refused to let Shanahan in, and closed the door.

The women who arrived with Shanahan heard the statement and told Mrs. Graham. In explanation of the remark, Mrs. Graham made this statement to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day:

"I never knew this Ben Shanahan, never spoke to him and never saw him but once. That was at the house of Mrs. Travers. I went in there one day and saw a man I didn't know asleep on a couch. I asked her who it was, and she said that it was a man named Shanahan, who was a fisherman.

Girl Spoke of Him.

"Now I remember that I had heard Annie speak about this man, and I heard also that she had been out with him and had even called at his boarding place. Then people told me that he was a drinking man, and I thought he was not a proper person for my niece to go around with. So I spoke to her about him, and said she had better not go with him any more. What happened after that I don't know.

"This Katie Neville that is talked about as being a friend of Annie's and Shanahan's I have not seen for six years. She and Annie came here from St. John's on the same train. I have heard that she went back to St. John's, but I don't know."

After learning of Shanahan's attentions to the dead girl, the Arlington and Boston police to-day took up an active investigation of his life in this city. They learned that he had been discharged from the Marine Hospital on March 23, which was the day on which it was said that Annie Mullins received a caller in the kitchen of the von Jagemann house.

He did not leave the city until last Friday, when his ship, the Catherine and Ellen, sailed.

It was found also that Shanahan had once boarded with Mrs. M. Delehanty, who now lives at No. 41 West Sixth street, South Boston. As he had spent much of his time ashore in various South Boston houses, Sergeant Smith and officers of the Broadway station have taken up the search for his life there.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter Mrs. Delehanty said:

"Ben Shanahan roomed with me when I lived at No. 135 Third street about five years ago. My husband saw him on the street two weeks ago to-day. Ben said then that his arm was all right, and that he was waiting for a boat. He left on the Catherine and Ellen last Friday and ought to get back on Wednesday or Thursday of next week."

Asked if Shanahan ever wore a mustache while she knew him, Mrs. Delehanty said that she did not think he ever did.

She described Shanahan as being about five feet ten inches tall, very dark complexioned, so that he looked more like an Italian than a native of Newfoundland. He was straight as an arrow, the former landlady of the fisherman said.

Shanahan had some trouble with his left eyelid so that it drooped noticeably.

Good Man, Say Friends.

When he lived on Third street with Mrs. Delehanty he became acquainted with Annie Mullins. Mrs. Delehanty thought that he was calling to see the girl very often, and spoke to him about it.

"Annie's all right; she's a good girl," Mrs. Delehanty said that Shanahan replied to her comment.

"I think he liked her very much and she liked him," Mrs. Delehanty continued. "I do not think they were engaged, and I do not know exactly when they stopped going together.

"Now, when Annie's wake was held I was there the entire time, and I did not see Ben Shanahan there at all.

"You can't make me believe though that Ben Shanahan knows anything about the killing of Annie Mullins. He wasn't that kind of a man. He couldn't have had any hand in it, of that I am sure."

According to Mrs. Delehanty, when Shanahan was in Boston he generally stopped with Mrs. Smallcomb on D street.

In Love With Another.

At T wharf to-day Ben Shanahan's name was being freely discussed by the groups of fishermen who happened to be in port. It was found that he was known to quite a number of the men about the wharf, and that he had talked with some of them about his affairs.

According to one man, Shanahan's sweetheart was not Annie Mullins, but Katie Neville. "He constantly spoke of his regard for Katie Neville," said one skipper who knew Shanahan well and was, in fact, his friend. "I believe that he was very much in love with the girl from what he said."

About the wharf Shanahan was referred to as "Bert," and that was what he was called on the boats on which he shipped. He is described as an inoffensive chap, and his old associates say that he will be able to clear himself of all suspicion, should any exist, when he returns from his trip on the Catherine and Ellen.

John Moran, a fisherman on the schooner Alva L. Spurling, and a close friend of Benedict Shanahan, denied to-day that he had ever hinted that his friend Shanahan, whom he calls "Bert," could ever have slain Annie Mullins. On the contrary, declares Moran, he thinks Shanahan would have been the last man to commit such an act. He says he is sure that Shanahan and Miss Mullins were never sweethearts.

In an interview with a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, Moran said: "I want to say that the last man in the world I should connect with this case is Bert Shanahan. I had no thought of connecting him with the case when I said that he appeared downcast.

"He has been in the hospital, sick and without money, and had good reasons to be downcast. I have always known him to be a moral young man, and I don't believe he was ever a sweetheart of Annie Mullins. He had a girl at one time, but I think she has married someone else, and I don't know of Bert having any other girl since.

"I want to make it emphatic that whatever Bert's feelings were toward Annie Mullins, they were not sweethearts. All the Nova Scotia people here were interested and saddened by the news of the girl's death, and Bert was as sorry as the rest. I don't think he was any more downcast than any of the rest of the Nova Scotia colony here.

"I don't believe that Bert could ever be capable of doing such a deed. He is a fine fellow. I think it is a shame that I, as one of Bert's best friends, should be made to cast a shadow upon him."

Katie Neville, whose name has been mentioned in the case as having traveled around with Annie Mullins and often had Shanahan and a friend of his for company, is apparently not in South Boston at present. Whether she has returned to St. John's no one seems to know.

Another name mentioned in the course of the investigation is that of Joseph Squires, a native of St. John's, who had been in Boston and was reported to have made remarks about Annie Mullins being fond of him. Squires is married, and has been on Belle Island, just outside of St. John's, where he is employed as a fireman at Coal Mine Pier for the last year.

Miss Hines Found.

His wife's sister, Miss Tillie Hines, was located to-day at No. 259 E street, South Boston, by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

Miss Hines said that her brother-in-law knew Annie Mullins, but she thought that was about all. "He has been at Belle Island for about a year," she said. "I got a letter from him eight months ago.

"I never knew Ben Shanahan, never saw him and never heard of him until to-day. While Annie Mullins and Kate Neville came with me from St. John's, I have heard little from them. Katie Neville I haven't seen since she left us at the North Station. Annie Mullins I only saw about six times in two years. The last time was about two months ago. I don't know Peter Downey or John Perkins."

Miss Hines has been interviewed by Chief Urquhart and Inspector Hooley of Arlington and Broadway station officers. She was warned by them not to discuss the case in any way.

SUFFERED WITH ECZEMA 25 YEARS

Limb Peeled and Foot Was Like Raw Flesh—Had to Use Crutches, and Doctors Thought Amputation Necessary — Montreal Woman Writes of Cure Seven Years Ago.

BELIEVES LIFE SAVED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, "Try them if you like, but I do not think they will do any good." At this time my leg was peeled from the knee, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh, and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bottle of Cuticura Pills. After the first two treatments the swelling went down, and in two months my leg was cured and the new skin came on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use it for his own patients. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Ointment, and five bottles of Resolvent, and I have now been cured over seven years, and but for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I have lots of grandchildren, and they are frequent users of Cuticura, and I always recommend it to the many people whom my business brings to my house every day. SUSPEND COLLEGE CLASS; HAZED STUDENT INJURED

"FRESHIE" WHO CAUSED NEW YORK UNIVERSITY CLASH ROUGHLY HANDLED.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Following the suspension of the junior class of the New York University, there was a demonstration upon the campus, in which a student was severely injured.

The victim is Henry Bloch, a freshman, who has been the cause of all the trouble in the university lately. Bloch resented hazing, and the class ducked him publicly in the fountain. Prior to that he had entered suits against some of the classmen. Vigorous protest was made, both by Bloch and his father subsequent to the ducking episode, and the students went upon a strike.

Out for Three Days.

The junior class was called before the faculty to-day to be punished. Suspension for three days was meted out. As soon as the students got upon the campus they spied Bloch and made a concerted rush for him. Bloch's eyes were blackened and he was badly bruised before he made his escape.

The juniors sent out a general invitation to the three other classes to assemble on the campus last night. The serpentine dance was done up the hill and through the dark coridors of the Hall of Fame. Then the bright idea struck the leaders of the procession that it would be appropriate to let the faculty hear just what their wards in knowledge thought of them in tuneful rhyme.

Straightway the black line of students wended its way through the campus to the house of Dr. MacCracken and there an impromptu serenade was indulged in. "Goats of Harlem" was sung and then "Way Down on Chancy's Farm," "Here's to Chancy's Johnny" and the touching college anthem called "The Violet."

After the syndic had allowed these salutations to pass without once opening his shutters Dean Snow, head of the "fire committee," was favored; also Profs. Bliss and Haring. The same ominous reception was met at each of the faculty homes.

Hope for Pleasant Weather.

Most of the juniors agree that they will stick around college somehow or other, sleeping at the various fraternity houses and eating where they can find the bread of charity until the period of penance set by the faculty shall be past. All who live in the dormitories will have to get out. The generally expressed hope is that it will be pleasant weather for camping out.

CELEBRATE CENTENARY OF DIOCESE

Mass at Cathedral to Be Followed by Vesper Services This Evening.

To-day marks the one hundredth anniversary of Boston as a Catholic diocese, and informal services were held at Cathedral at 10 a. m. It is the intention of Archbishop O'Connell to celebrate the anniversary on a much larger scale later this Fall, and the Mass this morning and the Mass as Vespers this evening are simply to observe in an informal way the date of the anniversary.

Archbishop William H. O'Connell, in an interview in relation to the anniversary, said: "Celebrating to-day in the informal way that we do, we are offering thanks to God for the establishment of the hierarchy in the Boston diocese by the Holy See, and as there are similar observances in other cities, principally in New York and Philadelphia, we have decided to celebrate our anniversary in the Fall on a large scale. We will announce the date later.

"The mass this morning was on the Holy Mysteries, and to-night the Te Deum will be celebrated for those who were unable to attend this morning's mass. I will pontificate at the Te Deum."

The 9 a. m. mass was celebrated by Rev. George J. Patterson as celebrant, Rev. John J. Crane as deacon, Rev. J. J. McCarthy as sub-deacon and Rev. Michael J. Splaine as master of ceremonies. Archbishop O'Connel occupied the gospel side of the altar, and was attended by Rev. Francis X. Dolan, his secretary, and Rev. James O'Connell, a nephew of the archbishop, who is acting as assistant secretary to His Grace.

Father Scanlon with the full Sanctuary choir made responses, and Senor Di Lucca directed the music, with James J. Whalen as organist.

CAR CLEANER TELLS OF TWO STRANGERS VISITING TERMINAL

William Coates of No. 37 Waverley street, Everett, employed as a car cleaner at the South Terminal Station, and known as Number 249, has come forward with information regarding two men, which is believed by the police to be important in connection with the flight of the murderer of Annie Mullins.

Coates declares that he saw two men at the South Terminal Station on Saturday morning at 2 o'clock after the murder of the Friday evening previous.

One was a stocky, well set up man, clean shaven, having a broad face, blue eyes and brownish hair. He was dressed in dark clothing, wore a brownish slouch hat and an overcoat. This overcoat had some suspicious slits cut in it.

The second man was shorter, thick set, of dark complexion, smooth shaven and had bluish eyes. He wore dark clothing but had no overcoat.

Coates claims he saw the two men come into the station and get into a baggage car and hang up the overcoat. They next went into a passenger coach and went to sleep on the seats, which they turned over and made up for a bed.

Ordered Men Out of Car.

Realizing that they had no business in the car, Coates went to them and ordered them out. They were sullen and refused at first, but the big car cleaner told them that if they didn't get out quickly and peaceably he would get men enough to put them out in a hurry.

The mysterious strangers then left the car and the depot. But after they were gone Coates noticed that they had left the overcoat behind them.

Coates called the attention of his boss to the coat. The coat, Coates says, is at present in the possession of the railroad employe who is his boss. He said that he did not examine it close enough to see whether there were blood stains upon it, but he did notice that it was evidently in bad condition.

Boston Police Probe Story.

Coates read of the murder of Annie Mullins and after having his attention called to the two men who are figuring in the case he recalled the two men he had the encounter with. He was impressed with the fact that it was possible that they might be connected with the murder, so he communicated with the Cambridge police.

Not being impressed with the display of enthusiasm which he believed his information demanded from the Cambridge police, Coates next called upon Chief Inspector Watts of Boston, who went into his story fully and made copious notes.

Mr. Coates believes now that the Boston detectives will follow out his clew and produce some results.

Last evening the detectives worked diligently in the effort to recover the coat which the two strangers left behind, but they did not succeed in finding it. The search will be continued, however, until something definite is discovered.

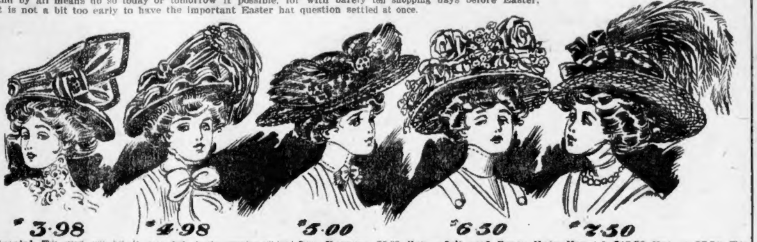
Undeniably New England's Headquarters for Your Easter Millinery

Included in this almost bewildering array of charming new millinery are HUNDREDS OF IMPORTED MODELS, SELECTED IN PERSON BY OUR BUYER, who visits Paris, London and other great fashion centres each season.

Almost Equally Wonderful Creations from Our Own Corps of Unexcelled Designers and Trimmers

Anything like a complete description would be futile. We give here five splendid values, but you must see our magnificent display, and by all means do so today or tomorrow if possible, for with barely ten shopping days before Easter, it is not a bit too early to have the important Easter hat question settled at once.



Special—This smart suit hat is one of our very best sellers. Made by one of the most exclusive manufacturers of ready-to-wear hats, and confined to us for Boston. Shape is medium size with slightly drooping brim of maline braid, the top is a draped peroxyline plateau; trimmed with large bow of ribbon, the edges of which are bound with maline braid and wired; two cut jet pins finish the trimming; black and all colors. Made to sell at $6.00. Special at $3.98

Special—Another stunning suit hat made by the same manufacturer. You can't buy it elsewhere in Boston. The frame is very similar. Facing is of peroxyline braid with loops of velvet filling in the bandeau. A large peroxyline plateau forms the crown, and is draped gracefully around the brim. A fold of velvet across the front is passed through a handsome cut jet buckle, which holds in place a pair of smart French wings. Exclusive milliners would ask at least $7.50. Special at.... $4.98

Our Famous $5.00 Hats—More and prettier styles of hats at this price than any millinery store in Boston. We mention this one as a fair example of scores of others. A "Merry Widow" sailor of rough pressed straw is trimmed with folds of ribbon around crown, a stunning pair of imported wings, and a large cut jet ball pin. Other large sailors and dress shapes trimmed with wings, fancy feathers, beautiful roses, small flowers, etc. Values up to $10.00. Choice at $5.00

Suit and Dress Hats—Many, many styles at this popular price. The one illustrated is of silk braid on wire frame, medium size, with slightly drooping brim and large crown; facing of chiffon with twist of tulle on bandeau. The upper trimming is a perfect blending of large roses, forget-me-nots, lilacs and foliage. You would surely expect to find it marked at least $10.00. Our price only $6.50

A $12.50 Hat at $7.50—This hat gives one an idea of the value to be found in our enormous assortment. It is a large pressed shape, of Jap. braid, with high crown; brim rolls up on the left and down at the back; wide folds of messaline ribbon round the crown, with a large bow of same at the side front, catching in place a long sweep of uncurled ostrich and a pair of French wings, can be had in all colors. Every appearance of a $12.50 hat. Our price $7.50

'Absurd! She Must Be Crazy,' Miss Marlowe Declares of Charges

ACTRESS SAYS SHE KNEW VON HERRMANN SOLELY AS BUSINESS MAN.

Dispatches to the OSTON AMERICAN this afternoon from Montreal, where Julia Marlowe, the actress, is playing this week at Her Majesty's Theatre, quote Miss Marlowe as saying that the only acquaintance she ever had with Karl Stephen von Herrmann, who is being sued for divorce by his wife, Clara Louise von Herrmann of Hamilton, Mass., was slight and solely of a business nature.

Miss Marlowe is mentioned in the divorce papers as a co-respondent in the case. Following is the first statement she has made in the matter:

"Why, it's the most absurd thing I ever heard of. It's preposterous! The woman must be crazy. My relations with Mr. von Herrmann have been simply of a business nature. I canont understand this unjust use of my name."

"Von Hargsteel" Goes.

At the Hotel Thorndike to-day it was stated that the young man who was quartered there last week under the name of "Von Hargsteel," and who introduced himself to many persons as a close friend of the von Herrmanns, had taken his luggage and departed, leaving no address as to where his mail should be sent. It is reported that the young man may have gone to Hackensack, N. J.

The von Herrmanns, in 1904, lived in style in the latter city. They occupied a fashionable residence, it is said, and the pretty young wife was lavishly entertained there. The purpose of "Von Hargsteel's" trip to Hackensack, according to report, is to hunt up certain pictures and letters which, according to his own admission a few days ago, will be made public.

Percy A. Bridgham of this city is the attorney for Mrs. von Herrmann in the divorce suit. He has an office in Court street. Mr. Bridgman was seen to-day by a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN and asked as to the whereabouts of "Von Hargsteel."

Hold Long Conference.

"I haven't the slightest idea," he replied. "I should like to know myself, but I don't know of any way of finding out. I expected to see him, but I haven't."

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Bridgham and Mr. "Von Hargstee." were in conference for several hours at the Hotel Thorndike and the divorce action and other matters were discussed at length by them.

Friends characterize the photographs and love notes referred to by Mrs. von Herrmann as having been found among her husband's possessions and coming from Miss Marlowe as forgeries. As for the photographs, they say, it would be an easy matter to procure any quantity of them, even with the autograph of the actress. The signature on the photo in the case is similar to that of Miss Marlowe.

Mrs. Backus Also Denies.

Mrs. Maud Thorburn Backus of Brooklyn, also mentioned as a co-respondent, emphatically denied all knowledge of any of the principals in the case, save only Miss Marlowe, whom, she said, she knows only from her appearance on the stage. Mrs. Backus declared in an interview that she had never even heard of either Mr. or Mrs. von Herrmann. There is indignation among the friends of the two women that their names should be drawn into the case. The charges are entirely without foundation, the friends declare, and they add that at the proper time the truth will come out about it. Mrs. Backus, in her home, is quite as well known as Miss Marlowe is known in the theatrical profession.

Julia Marlowe is an actress of international reputation and possesses many accomplishments in addition to her natural histrionic ability. In Boston, where she has appeared many times, and where she is especially well known, her friends are legion, and they all believe firmly in her innocence. For twenty years—since she was eighteen—she has been scoring repeated professional successes.

Miss Marlowe lectured before the young women of the exclusive Radcliffe College in Cambridge on February 21. She is said to be the only actress ever recognized there. She made many warm friends at the college and as a testimonial of their esteem the entire body of young women attended one of her performances in Boston, occupying a section of the house that had been reserved especially for them.

Sensational Charges Made.

Replete with sensation is the divorce action brought in the Essex County Court at Salem by pretty young Clara Louise von Herrmann, artist's model and leader in social functions at several fashionable American watering places only a few seasons ago, against her husband, Karl Stephen von Herrmann, former newspaper man, magazine writer, editor of several fashionable weeklies and a plain soldier in the ranks during the Boer war.

Clara Louise von Herrmann, before her marriage, was plain Clara L. Foss, daughter of Robert Foss, an aged farmer, living on the Topfield road, three miles from the centre of the town of Hamilton, in Essex County.

She is only twenty-four and very accomplished. Tall and stately, slender and graceful, with a pair of snapping black eyes and a wealth of auburn hair, her beauty was commented upon even in her early school days.

She attended High School and was educated musically in Boston. At sixteen—eight years ago—she met Von Herrmann. The latter was a dashing, well-educated young chap, and their meeting was followed by the usual romance and the customary termination.

Miss Foss was an athletic girl, especially fond of outdoor sports. She attended all the athletic meets of the High School association and played golf and tennis like a veteran. Soon all Essex County was talking about her.

Love at First Sight.

It was through a mutual friend that Von Herrmann secured an introduction to the girl. At that time Von Herrmann's career was in its infancy and he was just budding forth as a magazine writer of short stories.

He had already seen considerable of the world, however, and in Miss Foss he recognized a rare type of beauty. With both of them it was a case of love at first sight.

One day—when she had just passed her sixteenth birthday—the pretty Clara Louise disappeared. She wasn't missing long, but when she returned it was as Mrs. von Herrmann. The young bridegroom, smiling at what he characterized as their cleverness in outwitting the old folks, was with her. At first Papa Foss frowned and threatened things. Then he softened.

"I know we'll be so happy!" the pretty bride exclaimed, throwing her arms about her father and kissing him. "You just must give in."

And Papa Foss did.

Honeymoon Short Lived.

The parental blessing was extended and young Mr. and Mrs. von Herrmann settled down in happiness. The honeymoon lasted just two months. Hamilton was entirely too dull for the bridegroom and he suggested New York as their future residence. The bride consented. And quickly subsequent to her departure for New York she returned to Hamilton in tears. No questions were asked by the parents and no information was volunteered.

"Karl and I have just fallen out; that's all," the pretty bride declared. Further than that she was reticent.

The young husband left America. The New York home was closed. His absence was prolonged, but meanwhile his fame as a writer kept steadily increasing. His stories—chiefly adventures—were printed in some of the leading magazines. Money came fast and went fast with him.

In the meantime Von Herrmann had several times returned to his deserted bride. A reconciliation was effected each time, but the old desire to be up and doing things conquered Von Herrman each time and the spells of domestic happiness were brief.

The young couple lived at different times in many different places. It was the same old story with the bride each time she returned to Hamilton.

Julia Marlowe is alleged to have entered into the affairs of the Von Herrmanns when Von Herrmann was managing editor of a newspaper in Louisville.

Miss Marlowe's company was playing in the city and Von Herrmann wrote a first-night criticism that pleased the actress to the extent that she asked for an introduction. Mrs. von Herrmann was in Louisville at the time. She admits that she didn't at first object.

Kiss and Make Up, Then Separate.

It was in 1903, while her husband was abroad, that Mrs. von Herrmann began her first divorce action against him in the Salem courts.

She dropped the action, she avers, at the request of her husband, who cabled her from abroad. She rejoined him upon his return and they lived for a time in Hackensack.

There was another separation. Then there followed another action for divorce, which, like the first, was dropped for the same reasons. In October, 1904, Mrs. von Herrmann declares, her husband went West and worked in San Francisco, being employed there at the time of the earthquake. Subsequently he was badly injured at Goldfield.

The latest divorce action is brought through Attorney Percy Bridgham, who has an office in Court street. Mr. Bridgham says his client found letters and photographs among her husband's possessions recently which prompted her to sue him again. This time, he says, the suit will not be dropped.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter who saw her at her father's home in Hamilton, Mrs. von Hermann at first refused to talk. "I have nothing to say," she said, "not one word. My press agent, Mr. Van Hargsteel, will give out whatever is to be said. Yes, he's my press agent."

"You have sued for divorce before, haven't you?" was asked.

"Yes," replied the young woman. "I admit that."

"Why were those cases not pressed?"

Husband Not At Her Home.

"Because my husband interfered with me each time. I listened to him and he prevailed upon me not to press them."

"And isn't it possible this case may be dropped, like the others?"

"Not at all."

"Where is your husband now?"

"I don't know. Somewhere in Boston I presume."

"You haven't seen him lately?"

"I have not."

"In the village it is reported that your husband has been living out here most of the Winter. How about that?"

"Oh, that's not true."

"But one man is pretty certain that he saw him on a number of occasions."

"I cannot help what that man thinks."

Go-Carts That Wear

Just as Go-Carts are nicer and more up to date than the old-fashioned carriage, so is the Wakefield brand better and more strictly up to date than those of other makes. Aside from that important fact, they are planned to spare the baby every possible jolt. They are exceptionally good looking and have adjustments to give the baby all kinds of positions. Remember, too, that there is style in baby carriages as there is in everything else, and these are stylish. You'll find them very handsome, the bodies being finished in a fine brown color, and upholstered in pretty colors. The prices range from

BIG SPRING DISPLAY AT GILCHRIST'S

Fine Fabrics From All Quarters of the Globe Offered for Inspection.

Fabrics from all over the earth, from the far East, from the extreme West, from the South and from the North—just everything from everywhere and all under one roof—is the novel spectacle which the Gilchrist Company now invites the people of Boston and New England to inspect in Boston's big Daylight Store, Washington and Winter streets.

Improvement is the watchword of the Gilchrist Company. Snap, progress, brains, energy are everywhere visible—not only in the display of new Spring dry goods and dress materials, but in the manner of display, prices and the treatment of the people.

That's the reason that shoppers like to go to Gilchrist's Daylight Store—there's always sunshine there.

Prices are cut down so that there is no overcharging on many articles to make up for a cut to cost, or below, on some one thing. This is the policy of the Gilchrist company.

Among the betterments of the season to which the firm points with satisfaction are a balcony in the dress goods section, where customers can be measured for garments, a new balcony in the suit section of the second floor for six special fitting rooms, greater floor space in the millinery department, new swinging rug racks in the upholstery department and a new balcony in the men's furnishing section. These are not all of the improvements, for many are now in process of completion.

THEATRE MEN SEE NEW PLAY

William A. Brady and a large number of New York theatre managers and producers came to Boston to-day to witness the first performance on any stage of "The Intruder," a play dealing with the divorce question, at the Tremont Theatre to-morrow afternoon.

The author, Thompson Buchanan, is a young newspaper man. Members of "The Man of the Hour" company will present the play, assisted by Julia Stuart and Francis Brandt, well-known local players.

HUB MAN PRESIDES OVER CINCINNATIS

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 8.—The triennial convention of the Society of Cincinnati began here to-day, and will be in session three days. President General Winslow Warren of Boston presides at all meetings. M. Jusserand, French Ambassador to the United States, is a special guest of the convention.

PLANS FOR BIG MERGER OF MEXICAN RAILROADS

NEW YORK, April 8.—Plans for a consolidation of the Mexican Central Railway and the National Railroad of Mexico, under the name of the National Railways of Mexico, of which the Government will hold the controlling interest, are rapidly being carried forward. Four international banking houses are acting in conjunction with representatives of the Mexican Government in order to secure the exchange of securities of the two roads for securities of the new corporation.

The new holding company has been formally organized, with some prominent men in Mexican affairs on the board. These men include Jose y Limantour, minister of finance; Pablo Macedo, president of the monetary commission and framer of the Republic's new monetary system; Joaquin D. Casasus, president of the Banco Central Mexicano and former ambassador to the United States, and Guillermo de Landa y Escandon, governor of the federal district of Mexico.

According to the plan, holders of securities of the Mexican Central desiring to become parties to the consolidation must deposit their stocks and bonds before May 1 with the Central Trust Company of New York or Kidder, Peabody & Company of Boston. Holders of National Railroad securities are asked to deposit with the Mercantile Trust Company of New York.

In a circular addressed to the holders of all but three classes of the National Railroad, and to all but one of the Mexican Central, Speyer & Company, Kuhn, Loeb & Company, Landenburg, Thalmann & Company and Hallgarten & Company of New York, and bankers of London and Berlin, as readjustment managers, have announced the terms under which the securities may be exchanged.

Securities of the new corporation will be given on the basis of each $1,000 par value for the old securities.

The bankers are confident of the success of the undertaking because of the absence of political interference with the railroad in Mexico, the stability of rates and the demonstrated earning power of the constituent railroads. The plan has been approved by the Mexican Government, by the directors of the Mexican Central Railroad and by a majority of the outstanding stock of that company and of the National Railroad. It is believed that the merger represents a comprehensive policy of the Government for further development of the country and that it will result in a material reduction in the cost of operation.

TO GET AFTER JIM CROW LINES

WASHINGTON, April 8.—President Roosevelt has written a letter to the Attorney-General instructing him to proceed against the railroads of the South which do not furnish equal accommodations for negroes in the "Jim Crow" cars that they do in the coaches provided for whites.

The President had received a number of complaints from colored organizations and individuals in the South protesting against their treatment in this regard.

RESCUE CREW OF ABANDONED SHIP

PLYMOUTH, Eng., April 8.—A wireless received here to-day from the steamer Majestic, which is due in New York, states that on April 5 the Majestic picked up the crew of the Norwegian tank steamship Helios in mid-Atlantic. The Helios had been abandoned in north latitude 44, west longitude 39. No details of the rescue were given.

PRESIDENT READY FOR CLASH WITH CASTRO

WASHINGTON, April 8.—It is learned to-day that the tentative preparations being made by the army and navy for a possible military demonstration against President Castro of Venezuela are the result of a direct order from President Roosevelt upon the recommendation of Secretary of State Root.

These preparations do not indicate that the government has decided upon war with Castro, for such could be declared only by legislative authority.

It is the policy of the government, however, always to previously map out a program where trouble seems imminent. Such plans were prepared a year ago by both the army and navy, with their eye upon Japan, and several times within the past two years the possibility of trouble with Castro has caused the strategy officials of both branches of the armed service to outline a course of action.

Army and navy officials, who readily recognize the great difficulties that would be encountered in a campaign against Venezuela, regard the present moment as particularly inopportune for trouble in that quarter. At no time since the Spanish war has the United States been at such a disadvantage for military activity in Atlantic waters.

The Eastern seaboard is practically stripped of effective war craft, and the entire country is almost unguarded as far as the marines and mobile army are concerned.

In the case of most urgent emergency it would require fully two weeks to mobilize 5,000 soldiers for shipment to Venezuela, and difficulty would be found in obtaining sufficient transports to convey even these.

The marines in Panama and the soldiers and marines in Cuba cannot be withdrawn. The State department would prefer to maintain two or three warships in Haytian waters yet a while, but the most formidable part of the Atlantic remnants of the navy in service are now in those waters.

In case the navy should be called upon for action the old battleships Indiana, at League Island, and Iowa at Norfolk, both in reserve for the past year, would be put into service. They are available for use on forty-eight hours' notice. The three big battleships, Idaho, Mississippi and New Hampshire, will soon be ready for service.

LODGE-CRANE COMBINATION FOR HARMONY

United States Senator W. Murray Crane, fatigued somewhat from an all night journey from Washington to the seat of Republican warfare in Massachusetts, but feeling "well satisfied" with the condition of things political in this State, reached Boston at 8 o'clock to-day and registered at the Touraine.

Hurried messages were sent by telephone and telegraph by the Senator, and then he retired to his apartments, suite 803, with instructions not to be disturbed until noon.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge reached Boston at 10 o'clock to-day, called up the home of Governor Guild over the telephone to inquire into the Governor's condition, and then called upon acting Governor Draper at the State House. Shortly after 11 o'clock the senior Senator and the Lieutenant-Governor went into conference with Chairman George H. Doty of the Republican State Committee at the committee headquarters in the Kimball building.

Delaying their departure from Washington until agreeing not to have delegates instructed at the State convention Friday and agreeing if they could prevent it not to have a resolution of preference passed by the convention, and waiting until the Bigney-Long contest was obviated by securing the withdrawal of ex-Governor Bates, the two Senators, now in accord on convention plans, find Congressman Gardner with the bit in his teeth declaring that, Senators or no Senators, Taft resolutions will be presented to the convention Friday.

The first and principal business of the two Senators to-day will be to reconcile Congressman Gardner.

Friends of Senator Crane make no secret of the fact that if resolutions pledging delegates are passed at Friday's convention, the junior Senator will abruptly decline to go to Chicago as a delegate-at-large.

QUEEN OF DANCERS WEDS BOSTON VAUDEVILLE MAN

Blanche Deyo, the charming American danseuse, who has just taken Walter N. Jones, the celebrated tramp impersonator, as husband.

The picture Shows Miss Deyo in the Role of La Belle Sissi, The Spanish Dancer, in "The Spring Chicken" in Which she Scored a Success.

BOTH HUSBAND AND WIFE HAVE RECENTLY DIVORCED FORMER PARTNERS.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Walter Newton Jones of Boston, the noted entertainer and tramp impersonator, has married again, his recent marital troubles apparently having failed to discourage him. His bride this time is Miss Blanche Lillian Pixley, known on the stage as Blanch Deyo, dancer and vaudeville artist. She, also, has recently been divorced.

Jones was divorced by his previous wife in the Illinois courts a few weeks ago. His marriage to Miss Pixley took place at Crown Point, Ind. The bride is a resident of Chicago, where Jones also holds a residence.

The marriage of Jones, it is understood, runs counter to the recent decision of Judge George A. Carpenter, who interprets the statute barring remarriage within a year to have force even over weddings performed outside the State.

Less than two months ago Jones was legally separated from his wife, formerly Mrs. Frederick King Pulsifer, originally Miss Beatrice Champlin. Mrs. Jones filed her suit on February 4, and obtained her decree of divorce largely through evidence relating to a love affair which involved a vaudeville actress whose name did not appear in public accounts of the divorce proceedings.

BARRE GRANITE STRIKE ENDED

BARRE, Vt., April 8.—The strike of granite cutters of Barre and Montpelier, which began March 1, has been settled. The cutters at a mass meeting voted to accept the compromise terms arranged by a committee of conference.

These are thirty-seven and one-half cents per hour minimum wages for the first year of a three-year contract, thirty-eight cents for the second year, and thirty-eight and three-quarters cents for the third year.

It is expected that the differences between the manufacturers and quarrymen will be adjusted in a few days so that the quarries may be started up in all departments next Monday.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 men have been concerned in the six weeks' strike.

SUICIDE ON FOURTH TRIAL

NEW BEDFORD, April 8.—After three unsuccessful attempts to commit suicide, Frank H. Peckham, an expressman who at one time was well off financially, ended his life to-day by hanging himself.

For some time, it is said, Peckham has been despondent over business troubles. Not long ago he plunged off one of the wharves along the water front, but was rescued. On two occasions he took poison, but each time an overdose saved his life.

The body, suspended by the neck from a rope tied to a rafter, was found by a boy in Peckham's stable.

SMALL BOYS ADMIT CHARGE OF LARCENY

Two fourteen-year-old boys to-day faced Judge Sweepser in the Malden Juvenile Court on charges of breaking, entering and larceny. Frightened beyond measure, Hyman Rosken and Richard Welch faced the court and did not deny the charges of stealing $30 from O'Kee's grocery store in [illegible] street, Malden. Their parents had made restitution, and Judge Sweepser [illegible] on probation.

DROP BAKER MYSTERY.

HACKENSACK, N. J., April 8.—In charging the grand jury here to-day Justice Parker did not refer in any way to the death of Walter F. Baker, last fall in Bogota, N. J., which was the subject recently of a coroner's' inquest. Since no mention was made of it to-day it is believed the case will not be presented to the grand jury.

WALKED TO HIS DEATH.

LEWISTON, Me., April 8.—Apparently in his right mind Leopold Durocher walked into the Androscoggin river. The accident was judged by persons who witnessed it to be a plain case of suicide.

HISGEN NIPS PLAN TO TAX HIS OIL IN HOLYOKE

BLOCKS SCHEME TO ASSESS GROCER, WON FROM TRUST, FOR SECOND INSPECTION.

HOLYOKE, April 8.—Thomas L. Hisgen has registered another signal victory in the fight he is waging for equal rights in the sale of kerosene in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Holyoke dealers, handling the products of the independent dealers, will not have to pay for the inspection of their oil over again after it has once been pronounced of good quality by a State inspector.

For twenty years, up to ten days ago, Henry Butcher, a prominent High street grocer, has been handling the goods of the Standard Oil Trust. Then he shifted his patronage to the Four Brothers Independent Oil Company, of which Mr. Hisgen is the head.

Saturday morning the Standard Oil wagon called at his place of business and he informed the agent that he had transferred his custom to the independents. Sunday evening, he states, he received this letter:

Fee for Testing.

Holyoke, Mass., April 6.

Henry Butcher, Holyoke, Mass.:

Dear Sir—The law requires that all kerosene sold for illuminating purposes be tested and approved by the inspector of petroleum. You will notify me each time that you receive kerosene that has not been tested and approved by me and I will test the same. A failure on your part to notify me and the selling of oil that I have not tested and approved will be followed by prosecution. The fee for testing is 50 cents for the first fifty gallons and 10 cents for each additional fifty gallons. Yours respectfully,

JAMES K. MORRILL,
Inspector of Petroleum.

Taken entirely by surprise, as never during his two decades in business had he received a like communication, he called up Mr. Hisgen at West Springfield and the opponent of the Oil Trust was early on the ground yesterday morning, accompanied by his attorney, Richard J. Talbot of Springfield.

Mr. Hisgen Indignant.

Both were indignant at the action taken by the city inspector, as the State law, Section 110, clearly provides that when petroleum is inspected by duly authorized inspectors in any part of the Commonwealth that a local inspector cannot demand the right to inspect it again.

Mr. Hisgen called on Mr. Morrill and quoted the law to him and offered him any reasonable evidence that might be required to show that all of his oil had been inspected and was of the highest grade.

Inspector Morrill gave him no satisfaction, he says, except that he was living up to the law in writing the letter.

Mr. Hisgen and Mr. Talbot then sought Mayor Avery and laid the case before him. Mr. Hisgen says that the Mayor on consulting the statutes saw at once that Inspector Morrill was in the wrong and so informed Mr. Hisgen, telling him also that he was very sorry such a mistake had occurred.

Mayor Explains Error.

The Mayor said in explaining the inspector's error:

"You see there are two sections, 110 and 111. The first says that oil must be inspected by a State inspector and the next section says that city ordinances must provide for inspection of oil if it has not already been inspected by a State official."

Mr. Hisgen is satisfied with Mayor Avery's settlement of the trouble. If it hadn't been settled, however, Mr. Hisgen would have appeared before the Aldermen at their meeting last night to fight for his rights.

Some of the local grocers are disposed to make the fight of the Hisgen brothers their fight and so assured Mr. Hisgen today. As far as can be learned Mr. Butcher was the only grocer who received a letter from Inspector Morrill.

CHARGE COUPLE WITH DEATH OF 18 CHILDREN

SEVILLE, Spain, April 8.—Suspected of murdering eighteen of their own children, the anarchist Molina and Francesca Herrara, with whom he has lived for twenty-nine years, have been arrested here on a charge of wholesale infanticide.

A mob made a desperate attempt to lynch the couple when they were arrested, and the police saved their lives with the greatest difficulty.

The arrest followed the discovery of fragments of the skeletons of several infants in the house Molina and the woman occupied. A search revealed a small cemetery in the cellar and other graves were found in the garden adjoining. The police think some of the children were even buried alive.

The couple have had twenty-two children in the twenty-nine years of their residence together, and it is thought only four of them survive.

ROCHE'S BODY ON WAY HERE

BERNE, Switzerland, April 8.—The body of the late American Consul-General J. J. Roche, who died here last week after a long illness, was sent to Boston to-day for burial. It is accompanied by the widow and her son and daughter. The entire diplomatic corps here attended the funeral preceding the departure.

VANDERBILT DIVORCE TAKES SPEED RECORD

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Vanderbilt divorce case threatens to take a record for itself in the matter of speed.

It was said to-day that the decision of Referee David McClure would be in the hands of Justice O'Gorman on Friday, and there was little chance of the case going beyond Monday.

Where Mrs. Vanderbilt will be subjected to the ordeal of a cross-examination has not ben made public. The referee has decided, it is said, that there is no necessity for her coming to his office, and the cross-examination may be held at any place, so that the defendant's interests are protected.

The lawyers, when the decree is announced, will unquestionably make the usual motion that the papers in the case be sealed, not to be reopened except by the order of the Court, and this will be granted.

April 6, 1908

Mexican Central Railway Company, Limited, National Railroad Company of Mexico.

To the Holders of the following Securities:

MEXICAN CENTRAL RAILWAY COMPANY, LIMITED:
- Priority Five Per Cent. Bonds,
- First Mortgage Seven Per Cent. Bonds and Scrip, Assented.
- Consolidated Mortgage Four Per Cent. Bonds,
- First Consolidated Income Bonds and Scrip,
- Second Consolidated Income Bonds,
- Registered Income Bonds and Scrip,
- Stock.

NATIONAL RAILROAD COMPANY OF MEXICO:
- Preferred Stock,
- Second Preferred Stock,
- Common Stock (old),
- Deferred Stock.

The Mexican Government, which, through ownership of stock, already practically controls the National Railroad Company of Mexico, has caused to be prepared a plan for the readjustment and union of Mexican Central Railway Company, Limited, and National Railroad Company of Mexico, through the constitution of a new company, to be controlled by the Mexican Government by stock ownership.

The undersigned have consented to act as Readjustment Managers of such Plan.

In pursuance of legislation enacted by the Republic of Mexico authorizing the Federal Executive to issue the necessary decrees, and of a decree of the Federal Executive issued accordingly, a Company, hereinafter termed the New Company, has been constituted in Mexico by Public Deed under the name of which it is proposed shall acquire the securities and stocks of the Mexican Central Railway Company, Limited, and of the National Railroad Company of Mexico, and which will have corporate power to take over when deemed practicable the railroads and properties of said Companies:

FERROCARRILES NACIONALES DE MEXICO
(NATIONAL RAILWAYS OF MEXICO)

NEW SECURITIES.

The New Company is to authorize the following bonds and shares:

All bonds are to be payable, both as to principal and interest, without deduction for any taxes which the Company may be required to pay thereon or to deduct therefrom under any present or future law of the United States of Mexico or of any State or municipality therein or of the United States of America or of the State of New York or any municipality in said State, and are to be payable, both as to principal and interest, in the City of New York, in gold coin of the United States of America, of or equal to the present standard of weight and fineness, and all coupon bonds are also to be payable, both as to principal and interest, at the option of the holder, in the City of Mexico, at the fixed rate of Two Gold Pesos to the dollar in Mexican Gold Pesos, or in London at the fixed rate of $4.86 to the Pound Sterling, and at such places as the Readjustment Managers may determine at the fixed rate of Four Reichsmarks Twenty Pfennigs, if in Germany, or Five Francs Eighteen Centimes, if in France, Belgium or Switzerland, or Two Guilders Forty-eight Cents to the dollar, if in Holland.

The dividends on the First Preferred Shares and on the Second Preferred Shares, and in case of liquidation, the amount distributable on either class of preferred shares, are to be made payable at the option of the holder, at the fixed rate of two Pesos to the dollar, either in the City of Mexico in Mexican Gold Pesos, or in the City of New York in United States Gold, in each case of the present standard of weight and fineness. Such dividends are to be payable without deduction of any tax which the Company may be required to pay thereon or to deduct therefrom under any present or future law of the United States of Mexico or of any State or municipality therein.

a. Prior Lien Four and One-Half Per Cent. Sinking Fund Redeemable Gold Bonds, for $225,000,000 United States Gold.

The Prior Lien Bonds are to mature July 1, 1957, interest payable semi-annually, January 1 and July 1. They are to be secured under mortgage or deed of trust to Central Trust Company of New York, by the deposit and pledge as a first charge of all securities embraced in the Plan as finally carried out, and otherwise as detailed in the Plan, and provision is to be made in the mortgage for the creation by the New Company of a sinking fund beginning for the year 1917, and calculated to be sufficient, with accumulations, to retire the entire issue at or before maturity. They are to be subject to purchase for the sinking fund; and to redemption on any interest day after January 1, 1917, at 105 and accrued interest, on not less than 90 days' notice.

The right is reserved to issue $6,000,000 additional bonds ranking pari passu with the other bonds of this series to take up or retire at or before maturity £1,200,000 Prior Lien Sterling Bonds of the Mexican International Railroad Company, or an equal amount of Prior Lien Bonds of National R. R. Co. of Mexico into which such Sterling Bonds of the International Company may have been refunded.

b. General Mortgage Four Per Cent. Sinking Fund Redeemable Gold Bonds, for $160,000,000 United States Gold, unconditionally guaranteed, principal and interest, by the Republic of Mexico, by endorsement on each bond.

The Guaranteed General Mortgage Bonds are to mature October 1, 1977, interest payable semi-annually, April 1 and October 1. They are to be secured under mortgage or deed of trust to The New York Trust Company by a charge, subject to the Prior Lien Mortgage of all securities and properties at any time embraced in such mortgage, and provision is to be made in the mortgage for the creation by the New Company of a sinking fund, beginning for the year 1937, and calculated to be sufficient with accumulations to retire the entire issue at or before maturity. They are to be subject to purchase by the sinking fund; and to redemption on any interest day after April 1, 1927, at par and accrued interest, on not less than 90 days' notice.

The right is reserved to issue additional bonds ranking pari passu with the other bonds of this series to take up or retire at or before maturity an equal amount of the Consolidated Mortgage Bonds of the Mexican International R. R. Co., or of Consolidated Mortgage Bonds of the National R. R. Co. of Mexico, into which such bonds of the International Co. may have been refunded, and also to issue additional bonds to take up or retire at or before maturity an equal amount of the Consolidated Mortgage Bonds of the National R. R. Co. of Mexico, into which Prior Lien Bonds of that Company may have been refunded.

c. Non-Cumulative Four Per Cent. First Preferred Shares for 60,000,000 Mexican Gold Pesos or $30,000,000 United States Gold.

To assure to the holders of First Preferred Shares the payment of semi-annual dividends of 1% for the period of three years from January 1, 1908, to the extent to which the net profits of the Company which shall first be applied for that purpose shall not be sufficient to make such payment, provision is to be made for the setting aside by the Company, as a separate fund, of $1,800,000 Prior Lien Bonds, and $1,200,000 Guaranteed General Mortgage Bonds, or in case of a sale thereof, then a sufficient amount of the proceeds thereof.

d. Non-Cumulative Five Per Cent. Second Preferred Shares for 250,000,000 Mexican Gold Pesos or $125,000,000 United States Gold.

The Second Preferred Shares shall confer on the holders thereof the right to receive each year out of surplus profits dividends up to 5 per cent. on their par value after the dividend of 4 per cent. on the First Preferred Shares for such year shall have been paid or set aside and before any dividend shall be paid for such year on the Common Shares, but no deficiency in such dividend in any such year shall be made up out of the surplus profits of subsequent years. After payment of such dividend of 5 per cent., any residue of surplus profits distributable in dividends for such year shall be paid to the holders of the Second Preferred Shares and to the holders of the Common Shares constituting part of the initial capital, in proportion to their respective holdings, without regard to class.

e. Common Shares for 150,000,000 Mexican Gold Pesos or $75,000,000 United States Gold.

For a full statement of the rights of the holders of the respective classes of shares, reference is made to the Decree of the Federal Government of the Republic of Mexico, dated July 6, 1907, a copy of which has been filed with each of the Depositaries and can be inspected at the offices of any of the Depositaries.

SUES DIVORCED HUSBAND FOR ALLEGED LIBEL

Mrs. Alma Hazen Conant, Cambridge society woman, who accuses J. Ernest Conant of writing scurrilous letters to her mother, who is shown in the small picture.

FORMER HUSBAND SAYS HE WILL PROVE ALL HE WROTE WAS TRUE.

Mrs. Alma Hazen Conant, one of the best known club and society women of Cambridge, has sued her divorced husband, J. Ernest Conant, for $10,000 damages, alleging that he wrote scurrilous letters about her to her mother, Mrs. Fannie T. Hazen of No. 61 Oxford street, Cambridge.

"Yes, I admit writing the letters," said Mr. Conant to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, when seen at his place of business in Boston, "but I am prepared to prove and will prove that everything I wrote in the letters is true. When the case goes to trial I will fight it. Perhaps my wife's friends will know a few more things about her then than they do now."

The case promises to create a sensation. Mrs. Conant is president of the Women's Relief Corps connected with Charles Beck Post, G. A. R., while her mother, Mrs. Hazen, whose name is mentioned in the suit, is president of the Army Nurses' Association of America.

Mrs. Conant is connected with several other patriotic organizations in Cambridge. She is now living with her mother, who is quite wealthy.

On the ground of desertion Mrs. Conant secured a divorce last May in Lowell. She did not ask for the custody of any of her three children, all of whom are with the father. There are two boys, aged fifteen and twenty, and a girl, aged fourteen.

"The letters referred to in my suit were written both before my divorce and after," said Mrs. Conant to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. "Some were written to my mother and one to my brother. In many of the letters Mr. Conant said some terrible things. The letter to my brother he wrote since I secured my divorce. In it he said some awful things. I dislike the notoriety of the thing, but I mean to make him suffer for the insulting things he has written and said about me."

Does Not Believe in Divorce.

"I haven't lived with my wife for five years," said Mr. Conant to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "Five years ago I ordered her to leave me. I would have sued her for divorce many years ago but for the fact that I do not believe in divorce. She secured a divorce last Spring on the ground of desertion. If she had asked for the custody of any of the children I would have contested it.

"Yes, I admit that I wrote letters to her folks. My defence is that I can prove everything I wrote about her, and I am prepared to do so when the case goes to trial. I said nothing in any of the letters about her that was not true and I will prove it when the time comes. I wrote her brother a letter in which I said a few things about my wife. If necessary, I will have my three children go on the stand to testify."

"GILLETTE'S SOUL IN HEAVEN BUT GRACE BROWN'S IS LOST"

Amazing Declaration of the Confessor of the Slayer Calls Forth Indignant Protests From Clergy, Writers and Thinkers.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The amazing statement by the Rev. Henry A. McIlravy, spiritual adviser to Chester Gillette, that the soul of Gillette, the murderer, IS IN HEAVEN, while the soul of poor Grace Brown is not in Heaven, but that the murdered girl is SUFFERING PUNISHMENT FOR HER SINS IN HELL, has created a sensation all over the country.

Here is McIlravy's statement:

> "I am as confident as I am that I am alive that Chester Gillette is in Heaven. His conversion was real. He died a Christian man, and I never saw a person go to meet his God with more faith in the future.
> "I have been asked about the soul of Grace Brown, whose life was snuffed out by him before she had time to repent of her sin. It is something I know not of. That she sinned we know, but I have no knowledge that she repented and that her sins were forgiven. If she died unrepentent, no matter if she died a violent and unexpected death, her soul is undergoing punishment now, according to my belief."

GILLETTE CONFESSED SIX MONTHS AGO

UTICA, N. Y., April 8.—The remarkable statement was made by the Rev. Henry McIlravy, who converted Chester Gillette in Auburn Prison, became his spiritual adviser, worked with him until the hour the murderer went to his death in the electric chair and received his confession of guilt. In addition to the foregoing, he said:

"We all have the opportunity to accept the teachings of Christ, to confess and to have our sins forgiven. It was her fault alone if she did not do this before she died. She had the opportunity, and who can be blamed if she did not take advantage of it?

"Chester Gillette did confess his sin, grievous as it was. He found in Christ an unfailing friend, and I never saw a man more prepared to meet his Maker than he was."

It appears now that the Rev. Mr. McIlravy is not an ordained clergyman, and that he is of no specific denomination. He has only the standing of a free lance missionary.

He has a small church at Little Falls where his rigorous preachments have attracted a large following. His standing is practically like that of a settlement worker in New York. He is twenty-six years old.

It now appears that the confession which the Rev. McIlravy says Gillette made to him, occurred six months ago, and that it was never reduced to writing. Nevertheless, he asserts that Gillette told him a detailed story of the murder. What that story was, the minister will not say.

Told Prison Chaplain His Story.

"I did not tell Chester Gillette he should have salvation, but that he must have salvation," said Mr. McIlravy. "It was more than six months ago when the change came into his life, and it was then he told me the story of the murder.

"I have been asked many times to give out this confession, but it would do no good except to satisfy morbid curiosity, and I have refused to do it. It was never written out, no one knows it but myself, and no one will ever know it.

"It was when all hope of a reprieve was gone and the Governor had decided the law must take its course that I asked him to make a public statement or to permit one to be made after his death.

"I did not wish to have the responsibility of making such a statement alone, so I called in Mr. Herrick, chaplain of the prison.

"To Mr. Herrick he said he was guilty of taking the life of Grace Brown and that he had premeditated the murder.

"He told enough of the details only so that there was no doubt about the truth of his story, and then consented to the statement that was issued after his death over our names.

"Anything more than that would only satisfy a morbid curiosity, and I certainly shall never do that."

McILRAVY'S SENTIMENTS FORCIBLY DISAPPROVED

NEW YORK, April 8.—Many ministers, writers and thinkers have very forcibly expressed their disapproval of Mr. McIlravy's remarkable sentiments.

Following are the views of some of these:

REV. GEORGE SANDERSON,

(Chaplain of the Tombs Prison.)

"Grace Brown's profession of Christianity is unknown to me, but I believe a person can be saved, even at the last moment of his or her life.

"Chester Gillette's life was one big lie. He lied to that girl; he lied all the way through his trial, and, so far as the public knows, he lied right up to the time of his electrocution, because he tacitly allowed his friends to make appeals to the Governor on the theory that he did not kill Grace Brown, when, as a matter of fact, his own spiritual advisers admitted after the electrocution that no judicial mistake had been made in his case.

"On the theory that the thief on the cross was saved, it was possible for Chester Gillette to receive pardon before his execution, but I most certainly do not believe that Grace Brown's soul was lost and a statement to the contrary appeals to me as being downright cruel."

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

"Without question she (Grace Brown) has advanced far beyond the realm which her murderer occupies. For as Christ said of Mary Magdalene: 'Wherefore I say unto thee, her sins are forgiven, for she loved much.'"

REV. A. E. BARNETT,

(Pastor Tremont Methodist Church.)

"It is an atrocious proposition to say that the poor girl, more sinned against than sinning, be damned.

"It is invading the province of God, who alone can judge the souls of men. The chaplain who made that statement had better be engaged in rescuing souls of the living than in judging the souls of the dead. Repentance is not necessarily the work of a lifetime. It may be the epoch of a moment. 'Shall I judge if all earth do right?'"

FATHER LUKE J. EVERS,

(St. Andrew's Catholic Church.)

"That comes from a wild, erratic brain. Mr. McIlravy is not God Almighty. Only He can pass judgment."

REV. A. J. PALMER,

(Late presiding elder of the Poughkeepsie District.)

"The judge is not here on earth; he is on His throne above. No one here can say whether the girl repented or not."

REV. DUNCAN McMILLAN,

(Pastor of the New York Presbyterian Church.)

"If Gillette was really and truly repentant, and his heart was right with God, he was, indeed, saved. On the other hand, I believe that if Grace Brown died unrepentant she was lost."

REVERSES THE ORDER OF THE TWO SOULS

By Julian Hawthorne.

In my own mind there is nothing but compassion for a minister of God who is compelled by the belief that is in him to utter condemnation against a fellow creature, and that he feels it a grievous duty I have no doubt.

And that is all I shall about the clergyman who THINKS THAT GRACE BROWN IS IN HELL, and that the youth who brutally and ruthlessly murdered her is, "by reason of his confession of sin and acceptance of Christ," in Heaven.

Would Gillette have confessed had his life been spared? And if he confessed only when confession could do him no harm in the world and might help him with God, was it a free and fearless confession, such as to heal his soul?

I do not presume to answer these questions—no one else may so presume, but I ask them.

And I ask whether any conception we can form of a divine, infinite, wise, loving, merciful Creator can be harmonized with the ideas of one who would CONDEMN TO TORMENT an ignorant girl who had already suffered all the agony that earth can bestow?

Would His Heaven be the purer for it, His angels higher, his race of men more prone to adore him?

I will not attempt to answer that question either.

But I cannot help believing—and I see nothing in any Bible or religion to deter me—that if there be a Heaven Grace Brown will find it, and if there be a hell, Chester Gillette will experience it before those two meet again.

OLDEST SISTER OF CHARITY LAID AT REST

Solemn high mass of requiem is being sung over the remains of Sister Vincent this morning in the chapel of the Carney Hospital, South Boston. Sister Vincent, who was eighty years of age, died in the hospital on Sunday midnight after a brief illness. She was one of the oldest of the Sisters of Charity in this country and last year she celebrated her golden jubilee, as she had then been fifty years a member of the order.

Sister Vincent, whose name in the world was Shea, was brought to Boston from Ireland, where she was born, while she was yet a mere girl. When a young woman she became a Sister of Mercy and the first years of her service was in the Baltimore Infirmary. While there she rendered splendid service by nursing the sick and wounded soldiers of the Union.

From Baltimore she was transferred to the Mullanthy Hospital in St. Louis, Mo., and she was sent to the Carney Hospital, South Boston, in 1881. There she remained until her death. She has one brother, 81 years of age, living in Milwaukee, Wis. During the Spanish-American war she nursed many soldiers back to health at the Carney Hospital.

RUNAWAY HORSE HAD HEAD IN BARREL

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., April 8.—People on Market street witnessed a peculiar stunt to-day when they caught sight of a horse attached to a grocery wagon of George R. Palfrey coming down the highway at a rapid pace with a half barrel over his head.

The animal poked his head in the cask looking for something to eat and became frightened when he could not clear himself. He finally slipped in his run and was captured and relieved of his troubles.

OLD FIRM DISSOLVED.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., April 8.—The firm of Ryder & Cotton, hardware dealers of this city, one of the oldest business houses in this section of the State has dissolved and the interests sold to Frank P. Muchmore and Fred J. Ryder, son of Thomas Ryder, a firm member. The new combination will be known as Muchmore, Ryder & Company.

BANKER HAVEN DIES SUDDENLY

Financial circles in this city received a shock to-day when the death of Franklin Haven, president of the Merchants National Bank of Boston and director in a number of other Boston companies, became known.

Mr. Haven was seventy years of age, and had been connected with the Merchants National Bank for over twenty-five years, both as a director and president. He left the bank last evening and seemed to be in his usual good health, and later attended a lecture. He returned to his home, No. 35 Beacon street, shortly after 10 o'clock, and at 11 o'clock was found dead sitting in a chair in his room.

Besides being president of the Merchants National Bank, Mr. Haven was a director of the Bay State Trust Company, president of the Boston Clearing House Association, treasurer of the Convalescent Home in Waverly, director of the Guarantee Company of North America, trustee of the Huntington Avenue Lands, treasurer of the Massachusetts General Hospital, vice-president of the Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance Company, treasurer of the McLean Hospital, and vice-president and director of the New England Trust Company.

Sold by all Druggists.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Nature warns you when the track of health is not clear. Kidney and bladder trouble compel you to pass water often through the day and get up many times during the night.

Unhealthy kidneys cause lumbago, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headache or indigestion, as time passes you may have a sallow complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes feel as though you had heart trouble, may have plenty of ambition but no strength, get weak and waste away.

If such conditions are permitted to continue, serious results are sure to follow; Bright's disease, the very worst form of kidney trouble, may steal upon you.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

A Trial Will Convince Anyone.

If you are sick or feeling badly, begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help the other organs to health. In taking Swamp-Root, you afford natural help to Nature, for it is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that has ever been discovered.

You cannot get rid of your aches and pains if your kidneys are out of order. You cannot feel right when your kidneys are wrong.

Swamp-Root is Pleasant to Take.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., which you will find on every bottle.

Swamp-Root is always kept up to its high standard of purity and excellence. A sworn certificate of purity with every bottle.

SAMPLE BOTTLE FREE—To prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands of letters received from men and women who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy they needed. The value of Swamp-Root is so well known that you are advised to send for a sample bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the Boston Daily American.

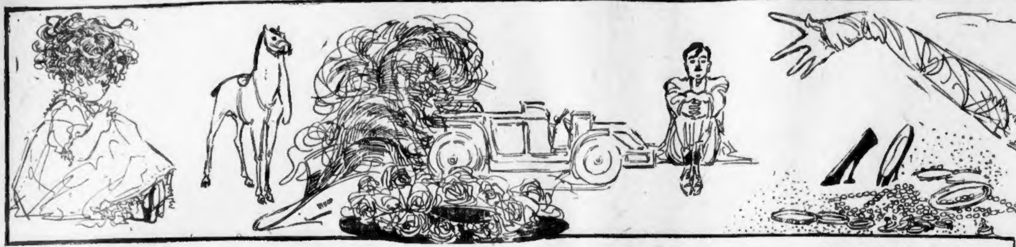
The Longing That Every Woman Has in Her Heart

By Nell Brinkley



"At the end maybe you think it is that wonderful thing—a kiddie, maybe—that you have missed and have not. But I think that wouldn't be it, either."

Are Women to Blame for Man's Lack of Courtesy in Public

By Beatrice Fairfax

WE women do a great deal of talking about men's selfishness in occupying the seats in trains and ferries. That's all right. Some of them are hideously selfish and lacking in courtesy, but sometimes don't you think we are a little bit to blame?

I notice that the smiling, sweet-looking woman is much more apt to have a seat given her than the woman who glares at every seated man as though she would like to annihilate him.

The men, excepting on the women's side of the ferries, have just as much actual right to the seats as the women.

Also, the tired workingman needs a rest more than the girl who has sat all the afternoon at a matinee.

But chivalry and courtesy have made it the custom for man to give woman the most comfortable seat, or the only seat, as the case may be, and sometimes she is in danger of taking her privileges a little bit too much for granted.

Not Considerate

I DON'T see that women are any too ready in moving closer together in train or subway so as to enable the standing passengers to sit down. Or if they do move they do so ungraciously.

Have you ever noticed how grudgingly the woman passenger allows you to share her seat on a crowded suburban train? You have absolute right to half the seat, but she sits square in the centre and does not move until asked to.

I am not defending the men, for they do push and crowd and jostle most ungallantly. But in many cases the women are just as bad.

Very often a woman does not have the politeness to even thank the man who offers her his seat. She settles into it with an air of "This is mine by right, and you should not have dared to sit in it in the first place."

I hate that kind of woman. She makes me ashamed for my own sex.

Courtesy Always Pays

THE woman who has a small child with her can always take it on her knee and leave a seat free for some one else to sit in. She does not do so, because baby likes to look out of the window. That is well enough, but baby can sit on her knee and look out of the window quite comfortably.

The woman who demands her rights gets them grudgingly or not at all, while the smiling, gracious woman has them thrust upon her.

Never forget to thank the person who shows you a kindness. Thanks and courtesy go a long way in this world. So does consideration for the feelings and comfort for your fellow-beings.

Remember that the man who offers you his seat is showing you a courtesy. You have no actual right to the seat.

Be consistent and treat others with the same politeness and consideration that you expect them to show you.

It Is a Longing for the Moon Mist That Is Beyond Life—the Essence of Being; the Heart and Reason of All Things

A VERY long time ago when the very Wise God wrought the gold sun, and the silver moon, and the talking water, and all the winking stars, and the other wonders of the world; after He had moulded man and woman of starlight and dew and white fire and ice and silence and song.

He sat a long time and wondered with His eyes misty, and then a little smile grew in them; and He took a bit of moon mist with a heart of fire and made it wings of gold dust and spider web gossamer, and He put it at the very most utter end of the world; and He put in the heart of the woman a longing for the winged thing of moon mist and throbbing fire and gold dust and gossamer. And after that He smiled.

And ever since the world was young, the saints leaning over the wall of Heaven with their gilded wings see the top of the world thick with the stretched white arms of the Lady Folk. And they must smile, too, for they know what she wants.

Beyond the Edge

And the Lady Folk have only a dim little dream of the thing they are hunting for. Maybe if they knew it was only moon mist, and that it lay beyond silence and the end of the world and life, they wouldn't open and shut their pretty fists for it so much, and draw their brows up to where their hair grows, and go about with an ache in the bottom of their hearts.

They wouldn't forget that the sunshine lay around them, and that their One Man and their Kiddie, maybe, were very wonderful things, and good to love, and just as sweet as moon mist.

For moon mist is beyond life, my Lady Folk. It is moon mist and heart of fire and winged with gold dust and gossamer because it is contentment.

It is the end and possession of all the things you chase through life. It is the heart and knowledge of beauty. It is the essence of being. It is the shadow of the shapes of words and form. It is the heart and the reason of all things.

And you can't close your pink fists over it until you have crossed over the moon and beyond the edge of the world. And then you, too, wi.. lean over the wall of Heaven with the other saints, with your gilded wings, and you will smile at the white stretched arms of the Lady Folk below. So!

When you were very little, and stubby toed, and banged of hair, and slender necked, you were new-come and very close to the moon mist; and you still had a bit of it left in your heart, and you knew a little what it was, and you wanted it; but not so much, because of the little you had, and because you were wise and a child.

Vision That Changes

But the longing for it stirred in your eyes when you grew tired of playing, and sat all bowed up on the top step of your porch and watched the clouds and the blue sky, with your eyes wide and your mind gone a dreaming.

And as you longed out and grew up you lost the little bit of moon mist that you had, and you even forgot what it was, and you wanted it more and more and harder and harder; and you weren't wise any more and new-come from the end of the world; and you thought the thing you sought was romance, and a beau, and fans, and fun. But it wasn't that.

And you grew up, and then you thought it was fluffs and frills, and chests of gold coins, and glitter and gilt, and silver lace and gaspingly wonderful hats. And it wasn't that. For you push that away with the toe of your bronze slipper, and open and close your fist for the thing you do not know.

If you are the Lady Folk that all these things come to, at the end maybe you think it is that wonderful thing—a kiddie, maybe—that you have missed and have not. But I think that wouldn't be it, either.

And there are all kinds of you, and you are all longing and chasing for that winged thing that God smiled over and put desire in your hearts for.

Some of you,- when you lost that bit you did have when you were new-come and wise, have always thought it was fame, and creations that would rise and work out under your hand; and you have worked, and wrought, and chased, and when you closed your hand over the fame that the wonders of your own hand brought, it wasn't that.

Some of you thought it was knowledge, and you are clutching yet, and wanting.

Some of you thought it was One Man, and still—even while you grip his hand with one of yours—you're reaching with the other toward the sky, and beyond that.

Wondrous Lucky

If those of you wondrous lucky ones that hold in your hands the things you chased after will only think a little think and brood over them, and forget the sky and beyond, maybe you would find a bit of that moon mist—not all, but a little—before you crossed the moon and the edge of the world.

Because some hold nothing in their hands, and they still think their moon mist is a little of the things that you have found.

But oh ho!—and fine it is, too—there are some very wonderful Lady Folk who have never lost the little bit of moon mist they had when they were new-come from the end of the world, and wise, and very young; and they know what it is, and that it lies beyond the end of the world and life, and they have a wonderful peace and sweetness about them.

But the others of you. Oh ho, Lady Folk! It is moon mist with heart of fire, and it has wings of gold dust and spider-web gossamer, and you can't close your pink fingers over it here, because it is contentment, and the "why" and the heart of all beauty.

FRICASSEED CHICKEN

FIVE tablespoons of chicken fat, five tablespoons flour, two teaspoons salt, pinch of pepper, six cups water, one-fourth teaspoon celery salts, one teaspoon lemon juice, one-half cup milk. Prepare chicken for cooking, cut into pieces for serving, wipe dry and roll in flour. Heat the fat and brown the chicken, using more fat if necessary. Remove chicken and add flour, salt and pepper to the fat; stir until flour is brown. Then add the water to make a brown sauce. A few drops of onion juice may be added. Place chicken in it, cover and cook gently until chicken is tender. Add celery salt, lemon juice, milk and more salt if necessary. The flour need not be browned if a white sauce is preferred. Lamb and veal may be cooked in the same manner.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

CHANDLER & CO., ON Tremont street, have reduced a lot of their $2 corset covers, as they are slightly soiled, and to close them out will offer them for 95 cents each. These covers are made of the finest materials, and are trimmed with fine Hamburgs and laces in different styles of all sizes. This sale will be special for Thursday only.

JORDAN MARSH COMPANY HAVE about one hundred stamped linen pieces for belts that regularly sell for 35 cents each. As a special for the readers of the AMERICAN these belts will be reduced to 19 cents on Thursday. These belts are made of good quality linen in eyelet and Wallachian designs. This bargain ought to interest most every girl, as one cannot have too many of these for Summer wear.

A VERY GOOD BARGAIN IN WOMen's hosiery will be found at Houghton & Dutton's on Thursday. A lot of their regular 35-cent goods will be reduced and placed on sale for one day for 22 cents a pair. This lot consists of imported hermsdorf fast black gauze lisle thread hose, made with garter top, high spliced heel and double sole; also some ankle lace lisles. After Thursday these goods will be sold at their former price.

IF YOU WISH TO PURCHASE WHITE goods suitable for graduation or party dresses you will find some sheer white Persian lawn of soft lustrous finish at R. H. White's that will be sold for 25 cents a yard—regular 39-cent quality. This material is 40 inches wide and of excellent quality.

TO-MORROW AT FILene's store you will find a bargain in a gingham petticoat. Just thirty-six petticoats made of best quality Bates's gingham, with two part flounce, having cluster of tucks on each part, will be sold for 75 cents. These have been selling for 98 cents and were special at that price.

IN THE BASEMENT OF HENRY SIEgel Co.'s they have about fifty coffee pots, known as the Harvey Ricker "half-minute" pot, that have formerly sold for $2 and $2.25. For a Thursday's sale this lot will be sold for $1 each. These coffee pots are of solid copper, heavy nickel plated, containing a cloth strainer and holding three and four quarts.

AN UNUSUAL BARGAIN will be found in the corset department of Butler's store to-morrow. About fifty pairs of "Nemo" corsets, in sizes from 19 to 22, and about thirty-six pairs of "P. N.'s," in sizes 24, 25 and 29, will be placed on sale for only 69 cents a pair. The "Nemo" corsets are made of good quality gray coutil and the "P. N." of white coutil, lace and ribbon trimmed. Both makes are the new models and are regular $2 values, but as the sizes are broken, they will be offered at this reduced price. These are excellent wearing corsets and ought to sell quickly at this price.

ABOUT FOUR DOZEN little galatea dresses for children from 2 years to 5 years will be reduced from $1 to-morrow at James A. Houston Company's and placed on sale for one day for 59 cents. These dresses are made Russian style of high grade galatea in smart colored stripes and checks, and also a few whites. These are splendid values at this price.

A LOT OF WHITE LAWN WAISTS will be placed on sale to-morrow at MacDonnell's Tremont Temple Store as a "special" for 85 cents each. This style waist is made of fine lawn with wide bands of filet insertion crossing, forming a pretty square yoke effect, three-quarter length sleeves and pretty tucked back. At this price these waists are bargains. They may be had in sizes from 32 to 50.

Daily Short Story

The Promise

By Otto Edward

"YOU don't mean to say, Prince Orloff, that you don't intend to try your luck at Trente et Quarante or Roulette?"

"Yes, my dear doctor, there is nothing in the world that could tempt me to change my mind, and you will have noticed that I don't even go near the gaming table."

"I had noticed that, but I never thought there was anything behind that, but simply believed that you wanted to look around a little before starting to play yourself," Dr. Bermulphi replied, looking kindly at the young man who was sitting opposite him on the terrace outside Hotel D'Angleterre at Monte Carlo.

Captain Count Orloff was a Russian, a tall, handsome man about thirty-five. There was in his face a certain melancholy expression, but what especially attracted one's attention was a broad streak of white hair running from his forehead to the back of his head, which was very conspicuous, as the rest of his hair was jet black.

"I suppose it is impossible to be at Monte Carlo and not to talk of gambling," the young officer said after a moment's silence, "even if you don't gamble yourself. I'll tell you the reason why I never play any more, and then you will at the same time find out about this streak of white hair which I know has aroused your curiosity several times.

Twelve years ago I was lieutenant in a cavalry regiment garrisoned at Kharkow.

It was in the middle of January that I applied for a furlough to visit an uncle of mine who had been my guardian since my parents died. His estate was situated at Ukrine not far from the town of Lebedin, where there was a regiment of infantry.

When the adjutant, who lived at Kharkow, heard where I was going, he asked me to carry with me 20,000 roubles and turn them over to the adjutant of the infantry regiment at Lebedin. It was quite natural to turn the money over in that way, and I declared that I would do so with pleasure.

I put the money in a stout satchel, which I had bought especially for that purpose, and, happy as could be, I started on my journey, looking forward with pleasure to be able to spend a whole month in the country without any military drills. The railroad at that time ran no further than Klerp, and with two other gentlemen it was necessary for us to continue on our way in a sleigh. Both of the others were going to Lebedin.

A Game of Cards

I had met one of these gentlemen several times before in Kharkow society. He was known as president and general manager of a large Russian company at Moscow, and was received everywhere in the best society in the town where my regiment was garrisoned. He was a handsome and representative man, who had many friends, and we began to get quite intimate during the trip.

I didn't care very much for my other companion, who was rather silent and who kept to himself as much as possible. He had besides a piercing expression to his eyes which seemed to penetrate your inmost thoughts.

The president and I carried on a very animated conversation, as it happened that he, like myself, was very much interested in hunting; and said that he expected to spend part of his time doing so near the estate of my uncle.

The Winter of 1885 was very severe in the southern part of Russia, and especially in Ukarnie. Everywhere we were told that for many years there had not been as much snow as then. The roads were very difficult to pass, and though we had three excellent horses attached to our sleigh we progressed rather slowly.

When we had covered about half the distance and had arrived at a station where we were to get a relay of horses it was already dark and it happened so that the postmaster didn't have a single horse left, having had to place his last horse at the disposal of a courier of the Czar. There was therefore nothing for us to do than to spend the night at the station, a prospect which was not very inviting.

Mr. Barchieloff, this was the name of the insurance director, appeared to be prepared for accidents of that kind. He said that he was used to spending most of his time travelling, and ordered his servant to serve supper.

About half an hour afterward we entered the small waiting room, which had been placed to our disposal and were surprised to find a splendid spread of roast beef, chicken, patties and even a few bottles of champagne. This impromptu supper did not fail to produce a good effect upon us, and we felt very much better though our silent companion still remained as silent as ever, and partook only very sparingly of the meal.

After supper we sat down in front of the open fireplace with our tea and cigarettes, and I enjoyed listening to Barchieloff's many stories of adventure, as well as funny incidents from society life at Kharkow and Moscow.

Later in the evening the postmaster came in to tell us that our beds had been made in three little rooms next to the waiting room, but my amiable companion did not appear to feel like going to bed yet. He lit a fresh cigarette and said with a smile:

"I'm sure you do not feel sleepy as early as this, and I think that as long as we sit here so cosily together we might have a little rum in our tea and spend an hour or two at a game of cards.

Luck Turns

I was willing, and we sat down at the table and began to play. The silent traveller did not go to bed, either, but sat down to read at another table close to ours, apparently not paying any attention to us at all.

The stakes were rather high. At first I was in luck, and when I had won a little over one hundred roubles from Barchieloff I began to feel rather bad about it. The loss did not seem to affect him, however, and he continued to be in excellent humor, and several times filled up my glass with rum.

At last there came a time when I began to feel that luck had turned against me, but now he wanted to win back what he had lost. I continued playing, and twenty minutes afterward I had lost all my money. Then, I don't know how, the desperate thought came to me to take some of the money that I was carrying for the adjutant, and from that moment it was as if I had lost every bit of common sense I ever possessed.

Luck continued to be against me, and one thousand after the other went from the satchel to Barchieloff's pockets. At last when I had not a rouble left he stood up and thought it was enough for tonight, and proposed that we go to bed.

I went into my room, and, crushed with grief, I threw myself on a chair and burst into tears. My head was now perfectly clear, and I understood the crime that I had committed.

I saw myself dishonored, for, poor as I was, I could never think of paying back such an amount. I knew that my uncle was very often hard pressed for money, and that I could expect no assistance from him, and in my whole family I did not see one whom I could ask to let me have 20,000 roubles on the spot.

"Who Are You?"

After a while I grew strangely calm, sat down at a table, wrote a few words to my uncle confessing my crime and asked him for the sake of our family to make good the money that I had stolen. Then I took my revolver.

At that moment the door opened and my silent companion came up to me. His face was as serious as before, but there was besides an expression of kindness and pity which surprised me.

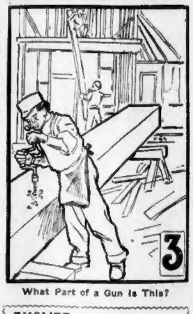
Handing me a bundle of bills, he said: "Look here, my boy. Here is your money. Bachieloff is a thief and a swindler. He has cheated you out of your money, playing false. I watched him all the time and discovered how he did it."

I jumped to my feet and took both his hands. "Who are you to whom I owe my salvation?"

"I am Paroutschain, chief of police of Moscow," he replied, and pointing to the room where Bachieloff was, he added: "For some time I have suspected this man, whose family is well known to me, and he will not escape his punishment. But you, my boy, must promise me by everything you consider holy and love that you will never gamble again."

I promised, and I have kept my promise. The white streak in my hair, which was the result of that night's terrible excitement, reminds me every day of my crime and my salvation."

DAILY PUZZLE PICTURE
Parts of a Gun



What Part of a Gun Is This?

ANSWER

....

ONE of the puzzle pictures is published daily in the BOSTON AMERICAN. Twenty dollars in prizes will be given weekly for the best answers.

The $20 in prizes will be divided as follows:

First prize	$10
Second prize	5
Five prizes of $1 each	5
Total	$20

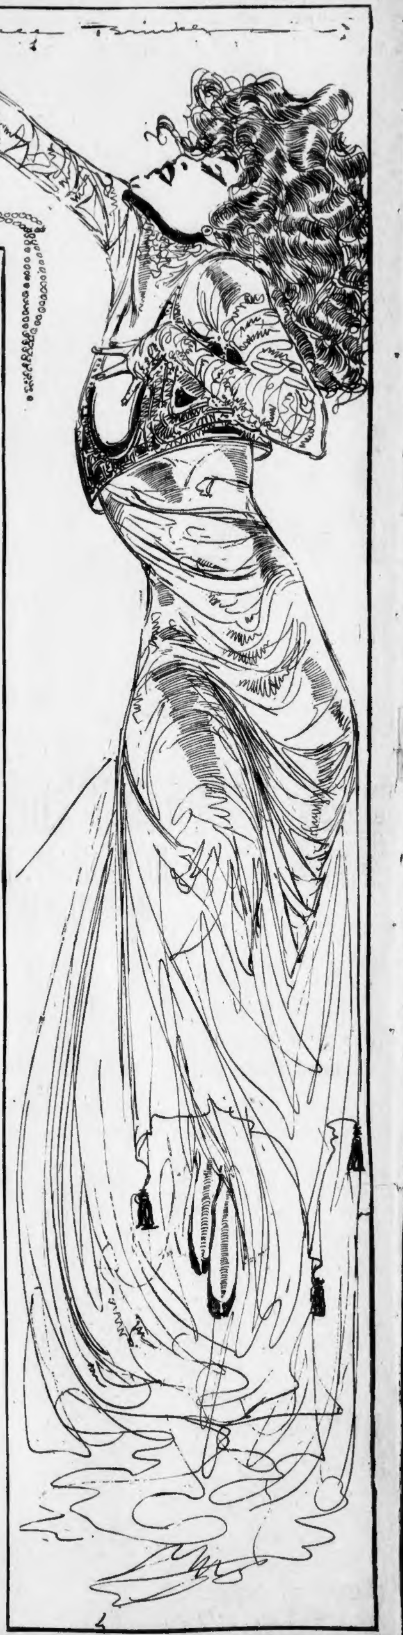
Cut out the puzzle picture each day, write your answer on each, and mail the complete set of seven to the Puzzle Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, with your best suggestion as to what you would like to see in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Where lists are equally correct the prizes will be given to those making the best suggestions.

The list of prize-winners of last week's contest, together with the final picture of this week's series, will be printed in next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

CORRECT THING IN THIMBLES

FURNISHING a fresh incentive to feminine industry, thimbles have taken on new frills now that it is Lent. A woman who sees many things which the rest of us overlook says that at a fashionable sewing class two of the women wore silver thimbles lined with gold and encircled by a gold band deeply carved and set with jewels besides. Even that adjunct of the distaff and sewing machine is not exempt from the caprice of fashion.



And ever since the world was young the top of the earth has been thick with the stretched white arms of the Lady Folk reaching for the thing of moon mist and throbbing fire and gold dust.

Chicago Fighter Lacked Nerve

BARRY EASY VICTIM

"Where is he," roared big Jim Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, as he rushed into the arena at the Armory A. A. to meet Sam Langford, the Hub colored giant killer. Five minutes afterwards the same Barry was being counted out by the referee after coming in contact with one of Sam's sleep capsules, which he carries in his right mitt.

The finale took place in the second round and would have been a fine bit of scenery representing the dying gladiator, with Barry being the whole show. It was so realistic that the fans immediately gave Barry much credit for the act and the heavy villain who romped on the stage to slay his adversary was a crumpled mass after receiving two taps on his teeth rack.

Barry succumbed so easily to the "Black Demon" that some uncomplimentary remarks were made by the fans as they were leaving the ringside which seemed justifiable. He showed every evidence of quitting, and was the easiest kind of a mark for Langford, after the colored boxer landed solid.

Barry an Easy Victim.

It was about the softest demise of a claimant for ring prestige that was ever witnessed at the big club and Barry's lack of courage against his lighter opponent evoked considerable surprise.

Rated as the favorite before the pair stepped into the ring, Barry's stock fell immediately after the bell rang when it was seen what perfect condition Langford displayed and the rubber got busy with the slate.

The first round was a merry clash with both handing out ripping wallops with either hand and equally willing to take chances, but Barry was guilty of unnecessarily holding in clinches and got a strong warning from the master of ceremonies, as he was trying his best to sneak over a jolt when ordered to break. He got in bad favor with the observers for these tactics and Langford was urged to slip one over on the bulky slugger.

Langford stuck strictly to the business he had in view and Barry must have got a glint of his destruction in Sam's eye, as he did some broad stepping in the second round which got him into trouble at short notice. Langford backed him into a corner, measured him well, and then sent over a twelve-inch shot to the jaw with his port wing.

It was a beauty, and Barry suddenly caved like a balloon, but was quickly on his knee and up to the count of ten looked a trifle confused, but able to put up his hands.

Langford walked right into him, repeated his former attack, and added a right slam for good measure and Barry did a few turns on the mat. He was up as soon as the referee reeled off the count of ten and was ready to shake hands with his victor.

Makes a Good Start.

Apparently chock full of confidence that he would whip Langford in a walk, Barry jumped into the ring and was the first to lead. He slanted a left into the pit of Langford's stomach and a second later got his right to the same region as Langford was boring in. Sam took a few whacks at the kidneys while Barry persisted in holding on. Barry got aggressive and jumped in with a hard right and left to the head which made Sam tie up to overcome the concussion. He sent a crashing right to the jaw when Barry attempted to repeat, but could not avoid a right to the body which Barry had started.

Barry tried for the body with a left hook and connected, but Langford followed with a right to the jaw, which had some stinging power.

Again Langford fastened his left on the jaw, as Barry was sluggish in action and left wide openings, but there was a bit of steam lacking in Sam's pellets, as he ordinarily fells a tree when he hits. A clean left jab to the face made Barry look easy, but it was near the bell time and he pumped in a left to the body before the gong.

There was a hot exchange at the opening of the second round. Both cut loose and swung without waiting to get their distance and Barry had a shade the best of the swapping, as he wound up with a stomach pounder of big calibre.

Curtains for Barry.

It made Barry feel good, as he began to kid Langford, who had a serious expression on his swarthy features. He followed Barry around the ring and hooked him twice on the head with his left which sapped about all Barry's confidence. He backed into a corner and made several fantastic feints to get out of the hole, but Langford had him about where he wanted.

Quick as a flash he sent his deadly left to the jaw and Barry tumbled. The house got ready to vacate, but waited to witness the finishing touches. Barry acted a little unsteady on his pins when he got up, but made little pretence to block another left, which Langford smote him with, and at his fall the exits were opened.

The preliminaries were short, but full of peppery stuff while they lasted. Denney Ryan, the shifty Cambridge lightweight, got his in two rounds from Eddie Murphy of South Boston, who was there with the bells on as a stiff puncher.

Young Limerick of Haverhill matched up with Young Clark of Providence, and the bout ended in the third round after Clark had gamely tried to hold his own with a better boy.

QUILL TO BOX HONEY MELLODY

Tommy Quill, the Brockton boy who has been beating them all in his class, has been matched to box Honey Mellody at the Armory A. A. on April 20, and this classy affair is likely to attract considerable attention.

Quill has proved he can face the toughest and win out and overcame the cleverness of Willie Fitzgerald. What he can do against the combined hitting powers and skill of Mellody will cause a lot of discussion before they meet.

THERE IS NO REASON

WHY an individual should not borrow money in case of need, and

THERE IS NO REASON

in borrowing when no need exists. Governments, States, municipalities, firms and corporations borrow in times of need. Our customers come to us when funds are needed beyond their ability to raise in other ways. Our advice is often of value. We aim to help, not to hinder, and in ten years of business we have never knowingly made a loan the payment of which would work a hardship to the borrower. MUTUAL LOAN COMPANY, 7 Water st., rooms 309, 310, 311.

How Rosa Bonheur Got the Wild Horse

There May Be a Lesson for YOU in This TRUE Wild Horse Story

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

Before she died, Rosa Bonheur, the great woman painter, had a wild-eyed, prancing American wild horse, in a comfortable paddock on her country place just outside of Paris. The horse may be there now, eating his hay, growing old in peaceful wildness, and wondering just how he got there.

James Mullins of Worcester, Ohio, was talking to his friend of many long years, John Arbuckle. Said he, "Tell my nephew that wild horse story." And this is the story, about as Mr. Arbuckle told it.

Mr. Arbuckle, by the way, is the great dealer in coffee and sugar. The Sugar Trust once decided to suppress him; but there must have been something of the wild horse in the Arbuckle makeup, for he wasn't tamed then by the Sugar Trust, and he hasn't been tamed yet.

The wild horse story ought to be read by young men—ALL of them that want success. And it might well be read by old men. It would help to explain lack of success in many instances.

Rosa Bonheur painted animals. Her famous picture of "The Horse Fair" is one of the great animal pictures of the world.

She owned a fine, fierce lion, and other wild animals. She wanted a wild horse, wanted it very badly; but she couldn't get one.

John Arbuckle had known her and bought her pictures for years. He gave orders to get a wild horse for her, if the wild horse could be got.

He had in the Far West a horse ranch with six thousand horses on it. Occasionally one of the few remaining wild horses wandered in for company and mixed up with the six thousand tame horses. This was a bad thing for the tame horse breed. The wild horse is romantic, interesting and fierce. But he is not valuable in front of a street car or a carriage. And the foreman of the Arbuckle horse ranch willingly took the trouble to catch the wild horse that Rosa Bonheur needed.

Young men now chasing success, old men who have chased success hitherto in vain, learn how a wise man chased Rosa Bonheur's wild horse.

Did he saddle the fastest tame horse and gallop madly after the wild horse, swinging a lasso?

Not at all.

If he had put one hundred men with lassoes on the hundred fastest tame horses, they couldn't have caught that wild horse.

A wild horse is wise as well as wild. And in a wild country speed and violence will not catch him. His instinct in flight takes him through rough, hilly ground, full of holes and rocks. He gallops safely and swiftly where the tame horses would fall and kill their riders. To send a tame horse galloping at full speed in pursuit of a wild horse, in the wild horse's native country, would be like sending a respectable, stout old gentleman, with patent-leather shoes and white spats, chasing a young Esquimau across ice floes.

They caught the wild horse for Rosa Bonheur in this way

One man got on a good, strong, tame horse, and his orders were: "Keep as close as you can to the wild horse. WALK YOUR HORSE ALL THE TIME. DON'T TROT OR GALLOP; JUST KEEP ON WALKING."

The wild horse went in one direction, then in another. He went straight out, away from the tame horses, and then back again. And always a tame horse was walking behind him with a man on his back, KEEPING HIM MOVING.

When one of the tame horses got tired of walking, a fresh horse took his place, and the walk continued hour after hour, steadily, without any letup. That puzzled wild horse found that he was being pursued always at an irritating slow walk. Sometimes he galloped a little; the horse behind him only walked. Sometimes he trotted; the tame horse kept on walking. BUT HE NEVER STOPPED WALKING, NOT EVEN FOR A MINUTE.

Little by little the wild horse got disgusted, and tired, and sick of the whole proceeding.

He hadn't had a moment to eat, or drink, or rest. He was more disgusted with life than physically tired. He allowed the tame horse with the rider holding his lasso to get nearer and nearer—ALWAYS SLOWLY WALKING. Finally the lasso whizzed through the air, settled down over the wild horse's neck, AND HE WAS A PRISONER.

He was put in a big crate, labelled, "Wild Horse. Dangerous. Don't Handle." He was shipped across the ocean to Rosa Bonheur's home near the Fontainebleau Forest, and he may be there yet.

If he is there, he is undoubtedly puzzling his poor, wild head at s very minute, WONDERING HOW HE WAS CAUGHT. He is ying to himself: "How in the name of all that is cunning did that tame horse and the two-legged thing on its back ever catch me? I can run faster than the tame horse. I am smarter: I can go longer without food or drink, and that tame horse didn't even run. He just walked after me, and here I am."

That's the story of Rosa Bonheur's wild horse. She painted a picture of the horse, sent it to Mr. Arbuckle, and it is hanging in his use now. Possibly some day we'll get a photograph of it and publish it.

Meanwhile we advise readers to dig out of this wild horse story suggestions USEFUL TO THEM.

Young men, it won't hurt you to remember that success in this life good deal like the wild horse. Success can run fast, and if you try t it by a sudden dash you are very apt to fail. Sudden rushing success leads to pitfalls and dangerous places.

ce in a while you may achieve success with a sudden dash, just might possibly catch a wild horse by rushing at it full speed— a hundred times. But if you see your wild horse or your life head of you, the better and surer plan is to go after it, slowly, tely AND PERSISTENTLY, at a walk. The main thing is TO N WITHOUT STOPPING. Every hour, every day, every week, onth, GO ON, no matter how slowly, always in the same direc-

may be a long, tiresome hunt. It will undoubtedly be discour- and sometimes it will seem hardly worth while. Perhaps a man s ordered to go out after that wild horse, AT A WALK, felt idiculous. He may have got sick and tired of the slow, tiresome marked out for him. But he caught the horse.

u will do as he did, if you refuse to be discouraged, if you keep , and on, NEVER LOSING SIGHT OF YOUR OBJECT, never ide from it, you can be sure that you will catch the biggest t lies within your powers.

big or little, you will at last HAVE ACHIEVED SOMETHING.

Arbuckle did a kind and useful act when he took the trouble hat wild horse and send it over to be studied by the great Rosa The work that he did then would be multiplied in value many the hundreds of thousands of people, young men especially, who newspaper, should make up their minds to follow success slowly, and patiently on the wild horse catching plan.

Bobbie's Essays

By William F. Kirk

WHEN Pa was reeding his paiper the other nite Ma asked him Deerest, why cant we move over to Everett. It is the city of hoams, Ma sed, & all you have to do is to take the L & then you are thare.

Yes, sed Pa, that is all you have to do & then you are thare. I am a kind & peeceful husband, sed Pa, wich nevver raises much trubbel around the old homested, but wen you try to work me for the Everett thing, sed Pa, thare is nothing doing. We shall stay in this flat in Boston as long as we can coax the land-lord to let us stay, sed Pa.

Perhaps you remember the morning I went to Maplewood to buy that dog for yure cousin, sed Pa.

I remember it well, sed Ma. It was about ten (10) o'clock wen you left here.

Well, sed Pa, after many weery hours I got to Sullivan square & then found out that I had left my pocketbook at the office & had to cum back else I cuddent have bought that dog, sed Pa. After many moar weery hours I got my pocketbook & then it was time to cum hoam, so I dident go aggenn.

Talk not to me, sed Pa. I wuddent live in Everett for the wurld.

I remember the day vary well, sed Ma. That saim day I thought I wud give you a surprise so I went to Maplewood & bought the dog & took it way up to Medford & sent it to my cousin & got back to the flat at four (4) in the afternoon & you dident git hoam till the next morning.

I think it is vary straingе & peculiar, sed Ma, that I nevver had any trubbel in the Subway & nevver was kep from my littel flat & my dinner by any of them deelays or any of the other anshunt and honorabul ex-cuses you are always handing out. I think that after all I shall go & live in Butiful Everett, sed Ma.

Go, then, sed Pa, go & taik littel Bobbie, & think of me, lonesum & alone like Robinson Caruso, sed Pa. Maybe wen you hear that I have parished of lonesumness with nobody to cheer my last minutes excep my man Friday you will weap sum skalding tears.

It has always been that way since the beginning of the world, Pa sed. Wimmen is grate hands to luv thare husbands as long as the husbands digs up the coin & lets the ladies live whare they want to.

But wen the dark days cum, sed Pa, & the ladies wants to live in Everett so thay can keep thare husbands away from the bilyard tabels & everything that maiks life worth paying for, then, sed Pa, the wolf can no longer be kep from the door. Go to Everett, sed Pa, & good luck to you.

I suppoas you want me to go tonite, sed Ma. I suppoas you want to drive me out into the stormy nite?

It isent raining, sed Pa, the stars is all out & you mustent hand me any of that meller dramner about being chased out into the stormy nite.

Then Ma beegan to cry & sed: O, my deer husband, I will nevver leeve you. How cud I bear to leeve thee, sed Ma. You are the appel of my eye, sed Ma, & not the lemon, like I sed last nite. Forgive me, deer, sed Ma. I cuddent go anywhare without you.

Then Pa winked at me and sed, Bobbie, wen you grow up & have a wife, remember how yure dear old father ran his bluff. It aint the cards you git, sed Pa, its the way you play them.

So we aint going to Everett to live.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Of Twelve Foreign Countries Visited, Only Two Display Genuine Affection for America

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

TRAVELING in twelve countries, I have heard my own land, America, spoken of with enthusiasm, affection and appreciation but in two.

Holland, Belgium, Germany, France and Switzerland are entirely indifferent to America, aside from giving it credit for a good amount of industry, ambition and progress, its youth considered. But the general aspect of mind in all those countries is one of absolute indifference to us.

They are satisfied to have us come among them and spend money, but they lived and thrived before we were born as a country, and they knew they would continue to live and prosper without us. A modicum of jealousy is mixed with their indifference, when it is stirred to attention.

The Egyptians think of us as we think of the people on Mars; and to the Turks we are a market for rugs, but a nation to be avoided otherwise, lest our women contaminate their own by their independent habits of life.

But in Italy I heard America spoken of with sincere affection and honest admiration; and again by the Israelites in Turkey; and that indeed was praise from the heart.

"America! Ah, there is a land of religious freedom!" said an old Hebrew with tears in his eyes and voice. "There is a land where a man may go and make his way, and worship as he will, and no one molests him. That is the land of great souls—America!"

Many Sneer at America

IT was good to hear these words so far away from home, and after hearing so many sarcasms, so many insinuations, so many sneers about America and Americans, in other countries.

Some of these sneers and insinuations have been hard to bear with Christian resignation.

Thrown in the society of two very charming women, one English, one Canadian, it was a situation requiring tact and self-control when they selected every eccentric, unappropriately dressed or loud voiced woman who came to boat or hotel as "probably an American."

"Why probably?" I inquired. But when the only answer was a change of topic the explanation could not be forced.

Again, the English woman complimented the Canadian on preserving her English accent.

"How is it," she asked, "that living among Americans you have not acquired their way of talking?"

"Oh," replied the young Canadian sweetly (we were a party of three, and they knew my nationality), "my father was always after me if I spoke the least word like an American. He beat it out of me."

Proud to Be American

"JUST as we beat and ridicule our Americans out of your English accent and mannerisms of speech," I said, "when they are weak and silly enough to acquire them. We think it quite right and wise for each country to take pride in its own individual customs, and it is foolish to imitate others."

Whereupon the ladies looked much astonished, evidently not knowing there could be two points of view on this subject.

A party of noisy tourists at a hotel table were designated by a French lady as "those loud-voiced Americans." They proved to be of another nationality, on inquiry.

The same lady referred to an over-dressed woman in the hotel as "an American." Inquiry proved her to be from the lady's own country.

Many American women have brought these criticisms upon themselves by ill-advised and unwise conduct and habits and manners in foreign lands. But it makes the situation all the more mortifying, when we hear all the misdeeds of the traveling world heaped upon our countrywomen, to think that by the mistakes of the minority a ban rests upon the entire nation.

Therefore it was especially sweet to hear the Italians and the Israelites honestly and sincerely praise our land.
